

Tibet Issue in UN May Bring New Tension

Ireland, Malaya Want Full-Scale Assembly Debate

BY TOM HOGE

United Nations, N. Y.—A drive for a full-scale debate on Tibet stirred concern in the United Nations today that east-west tensions will be tightened up again.

Diplomats also feared the move will dredge up the whole question of red China's representation in the U. N. again. The assembly voted only a few days ago to shelve the red China issue for another year.

Would Invite China
Ireland and Malaya disclosed yesterday that they plan to call for a resolution charging red China with killing freedom in Tibet and demanding "respect for fundamental human rights" for the Tibetans.

One delegate predicted that as soon as the request to put the Tibetan issue on the agenda hits the 21-nation steering committee demands will arise that red China be invited here to give her side of the case.

Coal Miners Stage Protest In Germany

Bonn, West Germany — Thousands of miners—silent and waving black flags—marched through Bonn today demanding government action to cope with a mounting coal crisis.

With the rich Ruhr giving up millions of tons of coal more than can be sold, many pits face a shutdown and miners are losing their jobs.

Union leaders said 52,000 miners were taking part in the demonstration, the biggest in the 10-year history of this West German capital.

No Strike Pledge
Precautions were taken both by the union and police to prevent communist agitators from stirring up trouble. The union named 1,900 marshals to keep outsiders from butting in. No speeches were on the program.

Union Chairman Heinrich Gutermuth said "the hopes of the communists for a strike will not be fulfilled. There will be no strike."

Many of the placards carried by the marchers demanded nationalization of the mines. The mine workers are complaining the government is not doing enough to dispose of the 17 million tons of unsold coal piled up at pitheads.

Ike and Khrushchev Discuss Critical Issues of Cold War

Bullet Fired by Assassin Kills Bandaranaike

Dahanayake Sworn In as Successor To Prime Minister

BY DENZIL PEIRIS

Colombo, Ceylon — Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike died today from an assassin's bullet—apparent victim of the struggle between eastern and western ways which swept him into power 3½ years ago.

The frail-looking 60-year-old champion of Asian neutralism succumbed almost on the eve of a visit to the United States, which only a few months ago he termed Asia's best friend.

Wijayananda Dahanayake, a 57-year-old politician from Bandaranaike's cabinet, was sworn in as the new prime minister. Dahanayake in the past has ranged the political spectrum from revolutionary red to conservative blue.

Forced Red to Quit
His most recent exploit was to force the resignation of Marxist ministers of food and industries from the cabinet.

British-educated Bandaranaike failed to survive a 5-hour operation to remove three bullets which pierced his liver, spleen and arm.

Gov. Gen. Sir Oliver Goonetilleke, one of Britain's last remaining links with Ceylon, proclaimed a state of emergency on the island until the uncertain political situation is clarified.

On his deathbed, the mild-mannered prime minister forgave his accused assassin—a professed Buddhist medical monk, who whipped out a revolver and fired as Bandaranaike bowed in reverence to him.

The monk and another man clad in saffron monks' robes had called at the prime minister's bungalow in a luxurious Colombo residential area yesterday morning.

The gunman reportedly was angered by the prime minister's refusal to go all the way in shedding western ways in favor of ancient eastern medical techniques known as "ayurveda."

The assassin was shot by a sentry while trying to flee and was captured. He identified himself at the hospital as Talidwa Sovarama, 43, a specialist in eastern style medicine. He was being guarded in the hospital ward by a policeman.

Police today seized a Buddhist monk, G. Pannasekera Thero of Colombo, who was accused of being with the gunman. Police questioned several other monks throughout the night in an effort to determine the motive.

West Berlin and Reunity Of Germany Still Among Most Important Problems

Gettysburg, Pa. — (AP) — President Eisenhower and Soviet Prime Minister Nikita S. Khrushchev today began a problem-by-problem debate of critical cold war issues.

The second round of their historic discussion began in Eisenhower's hideaway on a mountaintop surrounded by low hanging clouds.

Meeting in Eisenhower's lodge "Aspen" at Camp David in Maryland's Catoctin mountains, the two leaders could see only a few yards through the picture window of their conference room.

The critical east-west dispute over the future of West Berlin as well as the broader problem of divided Germany had a high priority on the agenda of the day's session.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev, who began their talks early last night after a helicopter flight from Washington met for the first time this morning at the breakfast table and immediately began their informal conversations.

Report Promised
This start on the day's work—with the world watching for the results to be announced tomorrow—was reported to newsmen at the Gettysburg press center by Mrs. Anne Wheaton of the White House press office.

Press Sec. James C. Hagerty and Asst. Sec. of State Andrew H. Berding arranged a full report on the morning session around mid-day.

The Khrushchev-Eisenhower breakfast talk reportedly lasted an hour or less in the living room of Aspen lodge.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev will come to grips at their conference with cold war problems that have kept the

The commander of U.S. forces in Japan announced winds in the Tokyo area were expected to exceed 50 miles per hour with gusts up to 65 mph within the next 12 hours.

U.S. civilian and military personnel were advised to draw reserve stores of water, food and flashlight batteries.

2 Young Thugs Rob Teacher in School

New York — Mrs. Betty Koffer was conducting her fourth grade class yesterday when two older boys walked in.

"What is it you want?" she asked them.

One youth said, "I don't dig you, lady," and pulled out a knife. As Mrs. Koffer and her 28 pupils screamed, the other boy bandit grabbed her purse containing $39 and both fled.

Mrs. Koffer described the young robbers as Negroes, tall, about 16 years old. She said she was sure they were not pupils at the school, P.S. 109 on E. Ninety-ninth street, which has classes through the sixth grade for children from

Stevenson Talks Little of Running

Democrat Steps Nimbly Through Queries at Press Conference

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Madison — Adlai Stevenson of Illinois late Friday quipped his way nimbly through press conference queries about his prospects for a third Democratic nomination for the presidency, but didn't quite close the door to the possibility.

The man who made "egg-heads" popular among Democrats faced the most crowded state capitol press conference in years. Flanked by Gov. Gaylord Nelson, he repeated what he said "time and time again," he is not a candidate.

But he didn't say he wouldn't accept a nomination, and declined briefly and firmly to assess the prospects of others already in the running.

Round Table Talk
Stevenson was here to speak at the Civil War round table about an ancestor who was an Illinois politician and a confidant of Lincoln, and also to greet the Dane county Democratic club.

With the velvet voice and rich phrase of his campaign orations of 1952 and 1956, Stevenson greeted reporters obviously inspired by reports that Gov. Nelson, titular leader of the Wisconsin Democratic party, is preparing to take the leadership of a Stevenson draft movement.

Stevenson appeared anxious to detour conversation from his political future. At one point he volunteered his interpretations of Khrushchev's motives in his American tour, but the questioning got back to the nomination again.

Stevenson was asked if he would mind making an appraisal of the active candidates for the party nomination.

"I do mind," he responded instantly.

Later he said the nominee must have character, intelligence and courage. The party

No Survivors in Aleutian Crash

Anchorage, Alaska — A ground party which clawed its way up an unnamed peak in the wild Aleutian islands yesterday reported that all 16 persons aboard had been killed when an airliner smashed into the mountain Thursday night.

Only the tail section of the Reeve Aleutian Airways DC4 remained intact after the 4-engine craft exploded into flames on impact at the 2,000-foot level of the mountain, on Great Sitkin island, a volcanic island 24 miles north-east of Adak.

Probe Cost of Drugs For Arthritis Victims

Washington — A senate subcommittee plans hearings Nov. 30 on complaints by older people that drugs for arthritis cost too much.

The hearings will open a general investigation by a senate judiciary anti-trust subcommittee into the cost of prescription drugs. After the session on drugs for arthritis, the subcommittee plans hearings on the price of antibiotics, hormones, diabetic drugs and tranquilizers.

McDonald Says New York Talks Are Concluded

New York — The steel industry's top negotiator in the 74-day-old steel strike says he's ready to resume talks here Monday. But Steelworkers President David J. McDonald says he's through talking in New York.

Chief Federal Mediator Joseph E. Finnegan plans to meet during the weekend in Washington with Sec. of Labor James P. Mitchell to review the stalemate. Finnegan indicated the talks might be shifted from New York when they resume, but he didn't say where.

McDonald broke off the negotiations here yesterday, calling the sessions a "farfetched filibuster." He said he would resume only when management offers something "worthy of consideration by self-respecting steel workers."

Strong Earthquake Off Oregon's Coast

Berkeley, Calif. — A strong earthquake somewhere off the Oregon coast registered on the University of California seismograph here at 1:22 a. m. today.

Seismologist Dr. Don Tocher said the earthquake was quite strong. He could not estimate how far off the coast the tremor hit.

Tocher discounted the chances of a tidal wave arising. He also said that if the quake had struck anywhere near land it was strong enough to have caused damage in the immediate area.

Plane Down at Sea, 10 Airmen Rescued

Unfavorable Weather Does Not Stop Operations in Pacific

Seattle — Ten wet and weary navy airmen were plucked unharmed from the tossing Pacific ocean early today, nearly 12 hours after they had ditched their twin-engine patrol plane.

A massive rescue operation went like clockwork, despite foul weather, darkness, fog and the fliers' position—110 miles off the mouth of the Columbia river.

In Good Condition
The ten, crammed into a pair of well-outfitted rubber liferafts, were pulled to safety aboard the coast guard cutter Yacona from Astoria, Ore.

The freighter Olympic Pioneer had reached the scene only moments before and stood by as the men were hauled from the sea at 12:50 a.m.

Hovering above were four navy and coast guard planes, their powerful searchlights cutting through a heavy overcast onto the drama unfolding below.

Underworld Figure and Beauty Queen Shot to Death in Auto

BY LAMAR FALKNER
New York — Underworld kingpin Anthony (Little Augie) Pisanò, 62, and a married beauty queen were shot to death last night in a black Cadillac in a quiet suburban Queens neighborhood.

Carfano, the pudgy prohibition era henchman of Al Capone and longtime buddy of Frank Costello, and Mrs. Janice Drake, 32, who was married to comedian Allan Drake, were shot from the rear of the gangster's swanky car. In 1943, as Janice Hansen, she won a Palisades Park beauty contest. She was Miss New Jersey of 1944.

Nothing Wrong With Note to Star

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you approve of girls writing fan letters to movie stars? I occasionally write to a favorite movie star and my mother thinks it is in bad taste.

Answer: A very short note of intelligent appreciation of a part well played is a delight to every actor as well as actress. Unhappily, however, the usual letters sent by young girls to actors are very silly, in which case the answer is definitely, "No!" Perhaps the best deterrent I can offer is to remind these girls that those actors who are really very popular cannot possibly open more than a fraction of the letters themselves, but they must be opened by one or many secretaries. The young girls writing will have their letters read first by someone else, who hands it to the star only when worth his attention.

Making up in Public
Dear Mrs. Post: I work with six other girls and the other day we all lunched together and got on the subject of making up in public—particularly after finishing eating. I maintain it is permissible for a girl to apply lipstick after she has eaten, but as for combing hair and powdering her face, those were the strict tabus. Will you please settle this dispute.

Answer: You are right about combing hair. Nothing could be more nauseating than the thought of hair combing of any sort at table. Powdering and lipstick, if applied briefly, are permissible.

Funeral Register
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me how a register should be signed in a funeral home?

Answer: Write your name Mary Blank if that is the way the family knows you. But if Mary Blank would only be confusing to them, whereas Mrs. John Blank would identify you, then write the latter. A name signed in a register is not the same as signing a message, in which case it would be improper to prefix Mrs. to your name.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-26, entitled "Serving Cocktails," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E. P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 98, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Catholic Women Attend Conclave

Approximately 1,000 women gathered at St. Mary of the Angels church and school Thursday to attend meetings and workshops held in connection with the 30th annual convention of the Diocesan Catholic women. Included in that number were 589 visitors and 275 delegates.

Highlight was a talk on "Youth" given by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph E. Schieder, director of the NCWC Youth department. Msgr. Schieder began by urging today's adults to "distinguish carefully" in their young people, pointing out that those on the delinquency list make up only 2 1/2 per cent.

Other 97 1/2 Per Cent
"It's the other 97 1/2 per cent that I'm concerned about," he remarked, "because the condition is worsening, and we must be careful not to indict the innocent." He called condemnation of them as "the worst we've ever seen" a lie "because if they are," he stated, "it's the adults that are making them that way."

He went on to emphasize the importance of campaigns for decent literature and movies, asking if anyone could cite a publishing company or Hollywood studio that's "run by a teenager." He stressed the role of parents, expressing a theme which ran throughout his address, in these words, "When you live, you understand... when you understand, you forgive... and when you forgive, you forgive again."

Following his address, Mrs. Charles T. Konopa, president of the Green Bay Diocesan council board, introduced Mrs. Paul Segerson, Sr., NCCW director, and the Rt. Rev. E. J. Westenberg, spiritual moderator. The latter in turn introduced members of the clergy present. Presidents of the other councils were welcomed.

Your Problems

Majority of Youthful Married Teens Wish for Good Old Days

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I know you're against youthful marriages, but I hope you'll admit there are exceptions. We are exceptions, so please listen and give us the go sign.

I'm 16 and quit school last spring. I hated school and wasn't learning anything. Landers My dad said there was no sense loafing in school when I could be earning good money. So I got a job in a supermarket as a checker at $58.50 a week.

My boy friend is 18. He's a mechanic in a garage and earns $73 a week. Together we make more than my dad. We could get a nice apartment and buy furniture on time. We love each other very much and enjoy the same things — roller skating, swimming, Elvis Presley and drive-in movies. We are both mature for our ages physically and mentally. Please say there's a chance for us.—SO IN LOVE.

DEAR SO: I hear from hundreds of teenagers every week who were also "So In Love." The majority of their marriages are not turning out "good." They wish they were back in school where they belong.

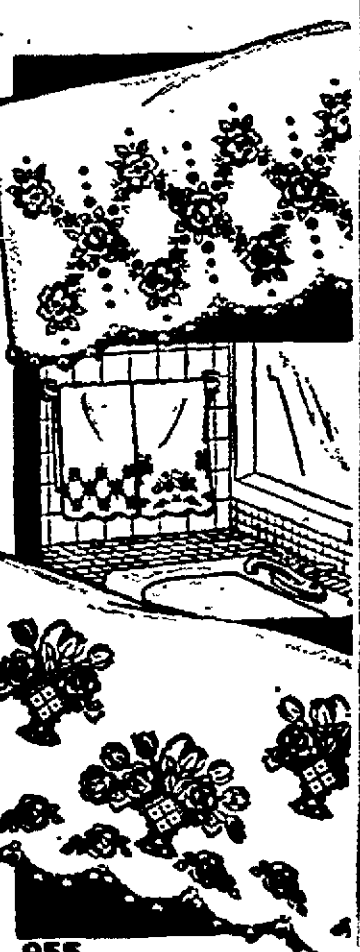

Certainly there are exceptions — and maybe you are the rare ones, but playing the longshots is a dangerous game. You can't build a life on drive-in movies and Elvis Presleys. Give yourselves at least another year — then take inventory. It's natural for young people to want to learn from experience, but divorce is one experience you can live without.

Below is a letter which came in today — strange coincidence?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a fool-proof suggestion for the girl whose neck is turning green from the chain on her sweetheart's lock. Tell her to paint the chain with colorless nail-polish. This will do the trick.—BUFF.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.) (Copyright, 1959)

Chuck Arm Roast Makes Good Stew, Swiss Steak

Want a beef roast that you can serve three ways? Choose a chuck arm roast and use it for stew, pot roast, and Swiss steak, suggest specialists on food buying.

An arm roast at least two inches thick will cut to best advantage. Cut the round end of the roast, up to the bone, into stew-size pieces. Divide the rest of the roast into two pieces.

The piece without the bone can be split into two one-inch slices. Use a sharp knife and keep the meat steady by holding a saucer on top of it.

The piece with the bone will make a good pot roast. Rub the meat with seasoned flour and brown in hot fat. Add a half cup water and cook slowly in a covered pan for about three hours. A half hour before the meat is finished add quartered potatoes, onions, and whole carrots.

To complete the meal, serve lettuce wedges, peach short-cake, and a beverage.

The two steaks will make good Swiss steaks. For variety, use a Spanish sauce. For each pound of meat, use a pint of tomatoes, a fourth pound of cooked and drained macaroni, a fourth cup of chopped onion, and a small green pepper chopped. Brown the onion and pepper in fat before adding to the sauce.

Use the cut up pieces of beef for stew or ragout of beef. To make the ragout, brown a pound of the floured pieces in fat. Add a small onion, chopped, a fourth cup of chopped green pepper, and three fourths cup chopped celery. Season with salt, pepper, and paprika. Add enough hot water to cover the meat, and simmer in a covered pan for two hours.

Serve the ragout with buttered brussels sprouts, tomato and cucumber salad, and blueberry pie.

Seagoing Play Far From Wet

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

U. S. Masters Team Champion

More good bridge is played on land than on sea for the same reason that New Yorkers eat twice as much as Texans. (According to the last census there were twice as many New Yorkers as Texans.) Quantity isn't everything, however; today's hand was played during a cruise, somewhere in the Atlantic Ocean.

Opening lead — H K

West opened the king of hearts, and South dropped the queen to frighten West into switching to a different suit.

West was worried, but he knew that South was Mitch Barnes, winner of several national bridge championships in his dry-land days.

West knew that Barnes was capable of making unusual plays. What's more, West couldn't see much hope of defeating the contract if South really had only one heart.

West therefore continued with the ace of hearts. East discarded a low club, and West promptly led a third heart for his partner to ruff.

East then got out with a club.

Tries New Swindle

Barnes had already failed with one deceptive play but tried a new swindle. He drew two rounds of trumps and then led the seven of diamonds to dummy's ace and a low diamond back from dummy.

It looked to East as though declarer had no more diamonds and was hoping to ruff out the king. East therefore played the ten of diamonds, and Barnes won with the jack. The rest was, of course, easy.

Why didn't Barnes try the normal diamond finesse instead of his rather fancy deceptive play? West had opened the bidding with a weak two-bid and had already shown up with six hearts headed by A-K-10-9. If West also held the king of diamonds he would have opened with one heart rather than with a weak two-bid.

In other words, East surely had the king of diamonds. The finesse could not work, and the only chance was a deceptive play.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-K J 10 8 3. H-Q 7 4. D-J 7. C-J 5 3. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades. This is a weak bid, and your hand seems to count up to enough for a stronger bid. However, you should avoid taking strong action with one king and no aces. Isolated queens and jack are of doubtful value.

Family Diary

I almost dreaded to get out of bed on Saturday because I had so much work waiting for me. Not only the usual Saturday tasks but an accumulation of leftover work—half the Tuesday ironing I had abandoned to attend the coffee for second grade mothers; the finishing of Libby's dress which I had promised she might wear to Sunday school. I had planned to put in the hem on Wednesday, but that was the meeting of the Literature division of the Women's club. Worst of all I still had to do the weekend shopping, a regular Friday afternoon task I had sidetracked for a meeting of the Riverside Beautification committee.

Blockly I realized that I had let myself become involved in so many community activities I had scarcely any time left for my family and none at all for myself. But there was little help for it now. It had been so easy to take on jobs in the spring when the long, long summer stretched ahead. Indeed it had been hard to say no, so persuasively had they been offered.

Invites Scouts

Happily, Saturday was a fine day. I was a little dashed to find that Tommy had invited 12 fellow Boy Scouts to build a tree house at the back of our lot but with Mitzie's and Libby's help I baked and sewed and cleaned and ironed John's shirts, stopping every few minutes to intercept Tommy as he made one trip after another to the basement for tools. If there is one thing in the world John is fiercely protective about, it is his tools. He insists the boys use their own, but Tommy's are usually lost or rusty from a night in the rain. Twice I stopped him from slipping out of the house with a plane or hammer of John's. I was pretty provoked.

Even more provoking and time consuming were the three phone calls for me — all of them along the same line. Would I serve on the high school chaperone committee? Would I open my home for a bird watcher's group luncheon? Would I help escort a group of girls on a tour of the museum?

In each case the caller explained that she was "rounding out" her committee. It was pretty plain to me that in each case some other woman finding herself in the same activity saturated situation I was in had simply reneged. However, there was nothing to do but explain in great detail my own cuses when I saw Tommy emerging from the basement with John's brand new, shining saw, unsuccessfully concealed behind his back. I glared at him. "No!" I shouted, and he turned and darted back down the stairs.

There was a sputtering on the phone and I realized that I had not covered the mouth-piece and had blasted that "No" right into the ear of sweet Mrs. Springerle.

"Oh, I'm sorry," I gasped. "I must explain—"

Her voice came back, shocked, rather breathless. "Oh, it's quite all right. I'm sure if one can't do a thing one simply can't." She hung up.

I gazed reflectively at the phone. It wasn't so hard to escape after all. Just a simple uncomplicated, "No."

I began to practice, "No. No. No." (Copyright, 1959)

Nikita's Wife Scores In First News Conference

Washington — Mrs. Nina Khrushchev, in her first formal news conference, showed her wits were every bit as sharp as her famous husband's and her temper considerably more even.

Mrs. Khrushchev met with women reporters Friday in the living room of Blair house. She carefully answered every question thrown at her and never once lost the humor that has characterized her throughout the state visit.

True, there were no barbed queries or hot potatoes tossed. But Mrs. Khrushchev seized on several innocuous questions to drive home some of the differences in Russian and American customs.

The news conference itself, for instance, was a brand new experience, and she admitted some trepidation at the outset. "We don't have that custom," she said. "We do not believe the habit of reporting in the press things that are mostly of social interest."

Was it a painful experience? "No, but we are not accustomed to it."

She was asked how she spent her time at home, was it mostly housework or charity work? She quickly replied: "I don't do any charity work. In our country, all that in your country requires charity, collection of funds and so on — the state takes care of all that."

Dressed in a white and grey figured dress, Mrs. Khrushchev met the press in a room that might be a museum of Americana. Portraits of Daniel Webster, Gen. George C. Marshall and of several American presidents looked down from the walls.

High School Years Exert Big Influence on Future Success

Couple Wed In Catholic Ceremony

Neenah — St. Margaret Mary Catholic church was the scene of the 10 a.m. nuptial ceremony this morning in which Miss Mary Potratz became the bride of Thomas J. Huhn. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Potratz, Sr. Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Huhn, Sherwood, are the parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. James Craanen officiated at the double ring service and James Potratz, Neenah, escorted his sister down the aisle. Mrs. Douglas Potratz, Jr., was matron of honor. Miss Shirley Towne, Appleton, and Mrs. Dennis Huhn served as bridesmaids.

Douglas Potratz served as best man in his sister's wedding. David Huhn, Sherwood, and Dennis Huhn, Appleton, brothers of the bridegroom, were groomsmen. Ushering duties were performed by Paul Behke, Kaukauna, and Carlton Hoehne, Neenah.

Germany hall will be the scene of a noon dinner, reception from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. and a dance from 8 p.m. to 12 p.m.

The bride, a Neenah High school graduate, is employed at the George Banta company. Mr. Huhn, who was graduated from Kaukauna High school, is proprietor of a Standard Oil station in Kimberly. He served in the air force for four years.

When they return from a week-long wedding trip in South Dakota, Mr. and Mrs. Huhn will reside at 440 E. Columbia avenue where the bride lived previous to her marriage.

lifework is to be they are starting on it right now. What they do in the next four years of school life will have powerful influence on what their place in society will be and what success they will meet in filling it.

Many of these young people do not know what they will choose as their careers. That need not trouble them too much. They have time to explore their abilities, their possibilities and in time they will learn what field they are best suited to cultivate. But there is one clear and positive fact in their situation that they would do well to recognize: They must make a wish, a wish that concerns their purpose in life. This wish is essential to their progress in school, home and society. A sincere wish becomes a purpose and a purpose pursued becomes a leading force.

Choose Ideal
Who do you wish to be? Choose your ideal, wish hard to achieve it and there is a good chance that you will succeed. It may be that a high school student longs to be someone that does not fit his life's pattern, that is he is still immature enough to want to own a candy shop so he can eat all the candy he wants. That is not the sort of wishing that becomes a strengthening force but a passing phase of childhood. The real wish that drives the possessor to work to achieve it has deeper roots. Something in the wisher's nature is calling to him and if he heeds it it will lead him to his fulfillment.

It happens not seldom, that a high-school student wishes to be one sort of worker and in the course of time changes his wish. That need not bother him too much. Every experience in learning and strengthening is informing and strengthening. No experience is wasted although it may seem so at the time. When a student is in earnest he finds his way and wish and achieves his end. Some take longer than others and that's the way things are, everybody differing from everybody else.

If you have no wish? If you don't know why you are attending school and do so because you must, know that if you do well what the day of yours you will find your wish. The important thing is that the need for a wish, a purpose, is there always and once it is discovered it acts as a driving force toward fulfillment. I would suggest to that high school student that he think about this and keep thinking about it until his wish rises. Otherwise, what good?

WHAT'S COOKIN'?

Miss Josephine Engel, home economist for the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, talks with homemakers every day in her work. She has discovered that most women want basic, down-to-earth recipes.

Here is one from her files that is a quickie, an economical dish that doesn't lose a thing in flavor or nutrition despite its low cost. Vegetables in season may be varied to make Quickie Ground Beef Soup a different dish each time it is prepared. Another point in its favor, says Miss Engel, is that it tastes wonderful as a leftover, reheated.

Quickie Ground Beef Soup
Cover one pound of ground beef with one and one-half quarts of water. Add one No. 2 can tomatoes or fresh tomatoes. Simmer for one and one-half hours.

Add one and one-half cups chopped vegetables, including one onion, carrots, celery, potato or any other desired vegetable to make the amount needed. Cook again until vegetables are tender. Season to taste.

Nutritional Nickname
The nickname of "Limcey" for British sailors dates back to the late 1700's when seamen ate limes to prevent scurvy.

Ernest E. Pressley, a policeman from Charlotte, N. C., and his troupe of dogs will give a safety circus, complete with ringmaster and music, Monday at St. Joseph and St. Mary Catholic schools. They will appear in Kaukauna Tuesday.

Sociologist Says Women Could Take Over World

University Park, Pa. — A sociologist—and a male at that—says what a lot of people have suspected all along, namely, that women could take over the world if they really wanted to.

Dr. William G. Mather of Pennsylvania State University says the gals could make this a woman's world if they made more use of their potentially great power.

He notes that because of a longer lifespan women now outnumber men. Through inheritance they control most of the country's wealth.

Because of their experience in child raising and family living, Dr. Mather believes, women are especially fitted to take on broad community responsibilities.

"Since early primitive times, women have shouldered the responsibility for family living and discipline and have mastered the art of adjusting to other people and cooperating with them," he says.

Dr. Mather, who heads the Penn State department of sociology and anthropology, says women are better educated than men, too. More women finish high school and get better grades than men. He admits more men graduate from college, but declares that the women who go through college usually get a broader education, because they are not as job-conscious as men.

Women, while outnumbering men, also could outvote them, if they took it into their pretty heads, he adds.

"Women must use these potentially great powers today," Dr. Mather says. "Women should expand their horizons and apply their skills to the betterment of the community and the world.

Upon women's doing this depends the survival of the species of man. For centuries women have kept the peace in the family. Now they must help preserve it in the world."

But relax, men, relax. When

Indoor Gardening Plain Water Spray Best Way To Get Rid of Plant Insects

By Katherine B. Walker
Insects are a garden problem, indoors our out, but perhaps more so indoors since one cannot use sprays and dusts as freely.

Over the years I have tried about every bug-killing method and the best in my opinion, is spraying forcibly with plain water. This will get rid of most insects and if repeated at weekly intervals, will prevent many from ever gaining a foothold on your plants.

Another method I use, when I can set my plants outside, is dusting. With this, as with using plain water, care must be taken to reach the undersides of the leaves as well as the top surfaces, as most insects congregate out of sight beneath the leaves. Many of the devices now on the market to make dusting less of a chore, I prefer the dust rather than the spray.

Unless the directions state otherwise, wash off a dusted plant with plain water after the dust has been on it for a day. One of the simplest bug-controllers available these days is a liquid that is packaged in an aerosol spray can. A few whisks of this, and insects vanish without mess or effort.

Be sure that whatever you use is intended for use on plants indoors, and always use the spray or dust in strict accordance with the manufacturer's directions. Even with so-called non-toxic sprays, use extreme caution in handling, using and storing, as they can make you ill, or cause the death of pet fish or birds, or rich soil and water very sparingly.

cause damage to your furnishings if handled improperly. In my opinion, toxic preparations should never under any circumstances be used on house plants, even though you may have used them without harm in the outdoor garden.

Questions and Answers
Is there any "rule of thumb" I could use to find out whether a plant needs a big pot or will do all right in a small pot for quite a while? When I get a new plant, I never know what size pot to put it in.

In general, it might be said that if a plant has thick roots, it will need a big pot, while those with fine roots usually do well in smaller pots.

My philodendron has long, stringy things growing from the stem. I thought they were flower stalks, but they haven't bloomed — they just keep getting longer.

Can I cut these off, or does the plant need them, and can you tell me what they are? They are aerial roots, and if your plant was growing in its native habitat, they would be used to help it climb. They may be cut off without damage to the plant.

I tried rooting a gloxinia leaf in peatmoss, and for a while it looked good. Then the leaf turned brown and dried up and fell off. What did I do wrong?

Turn the pot out on a piece of paper and sift through the peatmoss carefully. You will probably find a little tuber about a quarter of an inch in diameter. Repot this in fresh, rich soil and water very sparingly.

Young 'Copy-Cats' Children Learn Table Manners by Example; Follow Family Habits

A simple and worthwhile rule for parents when it comes to teaching offspring table manners is to eat the way you want your children to eat.

It is true that young folks learn by imitating. This junior habit can be made to work for parents when the toddler begins to eat with the family. There is much to learn all at once, which calls for patience on the part of grown-ups.

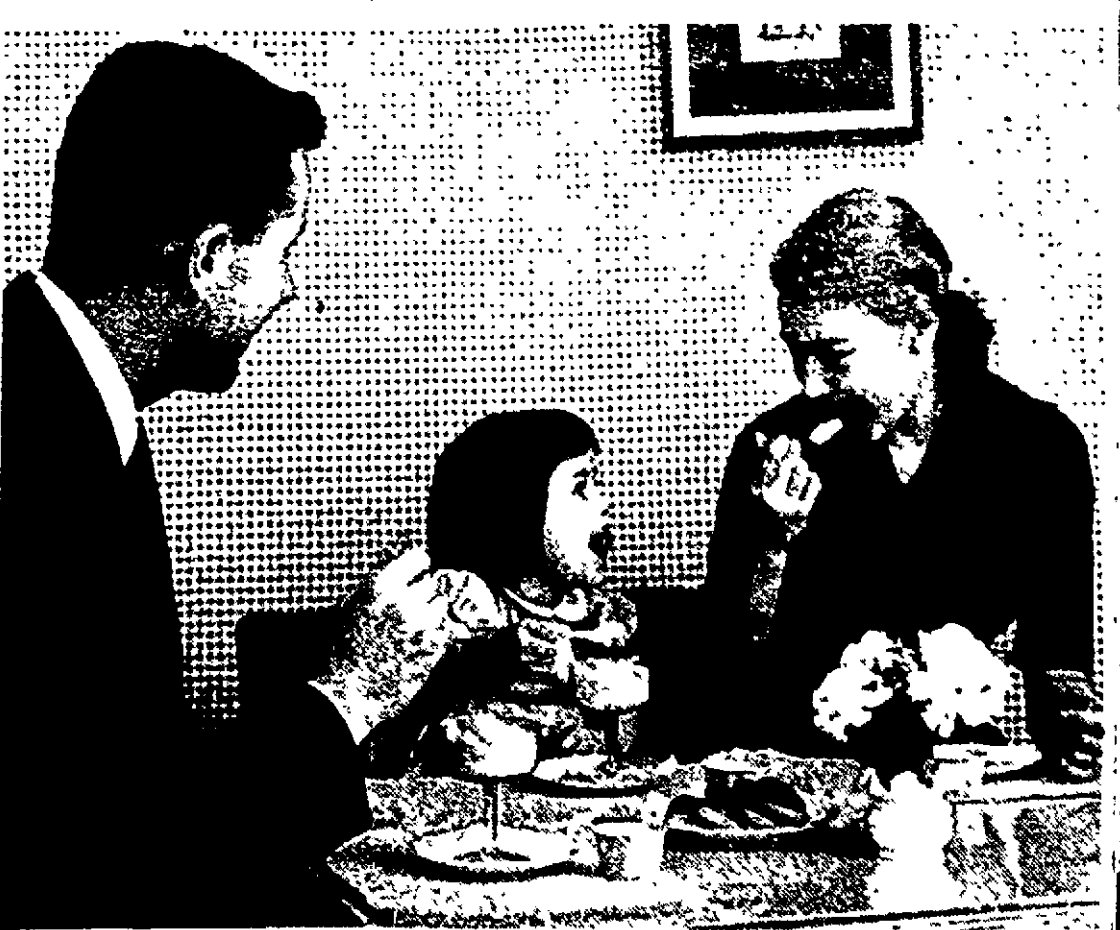

If Dad begins to grit his teeth during mealtime splatting, toddler and mother can get in their eating practice at lunch time, unhampered by critics. Then, when ready, the child may join the family group at the evening meal.

However, all youngsters should learn early to eat as a family member, observing the same rules and enjoying the same sociability that accompanies a pleasant, relaxed meal. So let him eat at the "main" table with increasing frequency as soon as he learns to manage utensils with moderate skill.

If the child does not eat well enough by himself without a lot of attention, it may be wiser to feed him ahead of a company meal when possible.

10 Basic Rules
Here are 10 rules to follow for happier meals with youngsters:

1. Before the meal, make sure the child has an opportunity for rest or quiet activity. Looking at books, listening to music or being read a story by daddy are good ideas. Children are imaginative, and tense television or radio dramas will upset them. Overly-excited children find it difficult to settle down to eating. Tell children it will be time to eat about five or 10 minutes before the meal so they can finish what they are doing.
2. Arrange the child's place so that there's no ruined table linens or furniture because of spilled food. Inexpensive plastics make it possible to protect the area so the small one doesn't have to be scolded, and patience doesn't have to be tried unduly.
3. Use child-size dishes and silver so eating is easier to accomplish. Be sure the chair is at a comfortable height to the table. Small feet need a firm support.
4. Allow the child the freedom of choice offered adults. Let him decide what he wants to eat from the foods served at the meal. He will tend to follow the example of others at the table.
5. Give small servings, so the task of eating doesn't look overwhelming. A second small serving works better than one which is too large in the beginning.
6. Cut food for the child if he cannot manage to do so for himself. Don't worry if the very young one wants to eat with his food with fingers at first. He will soon let you teach him to eat with a fork like the others around him.
7. Allow plenty of time for eating. If there is unnecessary dawdling, and the child says he wants no more, remove the plate without fanfare.
8. Don't force-feed the child. Give him help when it is needed, but encourage him to feed himself as soon as he shows he is ready. If the child says he's had enough, don't try to make him eat more.
9. Treat the young child as other family members, without letting him feel that he is the center of attraction.
10. Remain calm yourself. There is no better training than for a child to be able to eat his meals where those around are relaxed and enjoying eating. You want him to associate food with completely pleasant surroundings.

Young Fry are "Copy-Cats," a flattery to parents that also carries responsibility. Children learn table manners from association, they reflect the way mom and pop behave. Wise parents take the trouble to teach good manners by example and allow youngsters to eat with the family as early as possible.

Health Exams to Be Required of Food Handlers

Steps to be Taken to Enforce Regulations On Animals in City

Kaukauna — The deputy health officer has been instructed by the board of health to obtain copies of existing ordinances from other cities concerning regulations for food handling, to permit the city to draw similar ordinances.

The health board currently requires yearly examinations for bartenders but would like to extend the requirements to persons handling food, milk products, meats and beverages.

Complaints Lodged

The deputy health officer, James Gertz, reported he had been receiving complaints from citizens about the keeping of pigeons, chickens, rabbits and other livestock within the city limits.

Persons complained the animals were nuisances and posed a health hazard. The deputy health officer was authorized to draw up rules and regulations concerning these animals and submit it to the board of health and legislative committee for approval. The ordinance requires any person keeping or harboring any pigs, rabbits, goats, sheep, chickens, geese, ducks, doves or other fowl without first receiving a written permit from the board of health. Complaints are being received as some residents do not have a permit for keeping these animals.

Two Men Admit Traffic Charges After Mishaps

Kaukauna — James J. Gilboy, 53, Milwaukee, pleaded guilty of reckless driving when arraigned before Oscar T. Jahns, justice of the peace, Friday and was fined $100.

Gilboy was arrested after being involved in an accident with a parked car at Dodge street and Boyd avenue about 1 a.m. Friday.

Electroshock Therapy Not Surefire Cure, Says Molner

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Mrs. Molner: Please give some information about electroshock therapy — such as how the treatment is given, how the patient reacts, the benefits, how soon he may take his place in society after treatment, and most important of all, how his family and friends may best help him adjust."

Dr. Molner

"What causes a relapse? Does the patient or doctor ever discover what caused the nervous tension to begin with? Is this therapy often used for women having trouble with menopause?" — Mrs. N.C.

What a concentrated batch of questions! Yet all of them are good.

Electroshock therapy is just what it sounds like—an electric shock. You would not, of course, voluntarily take hold of a live electric wire. At best, it would make you go tense, and you would jump. But the moment you touched the wire, you would jump away.

Electroshock therapy is the same thing, except in degree, and in time. The current is controlled so the patient cannot be electrocuted, as can happen even from house current.

A Severe Treatment It is, after all, a severe treatment. However, in recent years new equipment has been designed to have the greatest effect with the least risk of any physical damage.

How does it work? How does the patient benefit? In all candor, I must say that we don't know why it helps, but by experience we know it does help in a great many cases. One theory (and the most logical one, I think) is that many mental illnesses are the result of a person getting his thinking (or his attitudes) cramped in a fixed position.

If you can shake a person loose from some fixed notion that is harming him, he can form some new emotional patterns that will be normal and acceptable to him.

Thus electroshock may do so, but it doesn't necessarily succeed. You try it; you hope for the best; sometimes you succeed and sometimes you don't.

It is impossible to say how soon the patient can return to society. Sometimes it is very soon. Sometimes—well, sometimes you don't succeed at all.

What causes a relapse? Why, the shaking up didn't overcome the basic problem. Does a patient or doctor ever discover what caused the nervous tension in the first place? Yes, many times, but not always.

How can family or friends help when the patient comes home? Just by living normally and pleasantly, and realizing that the patient, while he was emotionally upset, is not stupid! Mental illness is not a matter of brains. It is a matter of emotions. Remember that.

Last: Is shock used for women having trouble with menopause? No, not for the menopause. For an emotional difficulty which may have been intensified by the temporary problem of menopause (or any other problem), may-

Get Doctor's Opinion "Dear Dr. Molner: I have a growth or cyst that has been there for about a year. It does not bother me or get much larger. I have never told anyone or gone to a doctor. As I am 76 years old, I feel I should leave it alone. What do you think?" — Mrs. N.S.

It may, indeed, be something that you could leave alone—but not until after you have a doctor examine it. There are plenty of odd bumps, lumps, fatty tumors and so on which we acquire with age, and if they are harmless, leave them alone. What you must determine is whether each one is harmless, or whether it will ultimately become harmful or painful.

A Coincidence Note to Mrs. A.J.: I do not believe that Addison's Disease "runs in families," and while it can cause a distinct change in skin color, I wouldn't say that dark skin in your family was anything more than a coincidence. The disease, when the cause can be ascertained, generally stems from some other disease which has damaged the adrenal glands.

Do you have a problem with old people? If so, write to me in care of this newspaper, requesting a copy of my pamphlet, "What To Do About Elderly Folk," enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling. (Copyright, 1959)

Thunderbird Has Sun Roof

4-Passenger Models on Display Beginning Oct. 8

The 1960 Thunderbird will offer an automatic soft top convertible and an optional sliding sun roof with the hardtop model, while retaining the Thunderbird profile.

Sales of the 4-passenger Thunderbird have totaled about 100,000. The 1960 model will go on display Oct. 8. Prices have not been announced.

A sliding roof panel will be an optional feature with the 2-door hardtop model. In winter or summer, the sun roof provides improved air circulation.

Top Folds Neatly

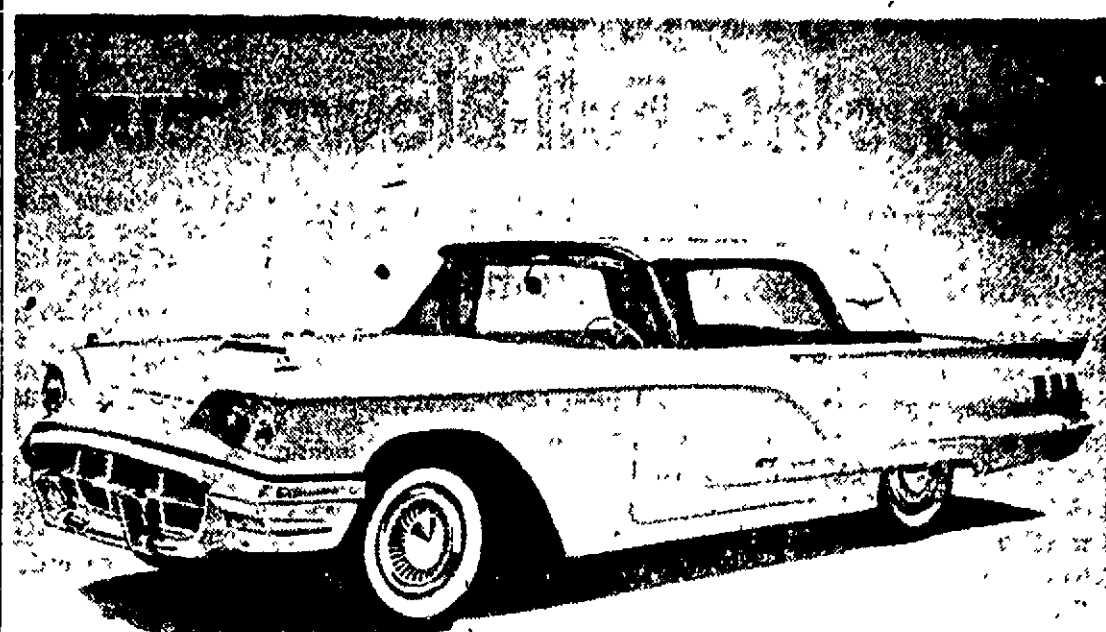

The convertible introduces a completely automatic top stowed beneath the flat rear deck. The top folds neatly into the trunk compartment, requiring no snap-on "boot" and showing no trace of the folded top.

The new front end features a redesigned grille. Inside the 1-piece bumper, one horizontal and three vertical ribs accent the aluminum screen that spans the front of the car for better cooling.

At the rear, the two pods each contain a new arrangement of three taillights. The two outboard lights on each side serve as taillights and brake lights, while the inboard lights house the back-up lights.

The Thunderbird emblem has been restyled; front fender ornaments have been streamlined, and the rear fenders are ornamented with vertical strips.

The 1960 models are available in 19 exterior colors, plus 2-tone combinations.

Standard engine is the 352 cubic inch, 300-horsepower V-8 with 4-barrel carburetor. As an optional power plant, the Thunderbird is available with the 430 cubic inch, 350-horsepower V-8. Either engine can be matched with Ford's dual range automatic transmission. The standard 3-speed manual transmission also is available, and with the standard V-8 engine, overdrive is optional.

The sliding roof option consists of an all-steel panel which slides on aluminum guide rails, and can be locked in any partially opened position. When fully to the rear, the sun roof has an opening of 19 by 34 inches. Channels and drain tubes prevent leakage into the passenger compartment. An air deflector above the windshield moulding de-

Wool Growers Voting Deadline Is Wednesday

Chilton — Calumet county wool growers wishing to vote in the wool and lamb market development referendum must cast ballots not later than Wednesday, according to Herb Goeldi, chairman of the county ASC committee. Ballots were mailed to all known wool and lamb producers and may be returned to the county ASC office personally, or if mailed, must be postmarked by Sept. 30.

In the referendum, farmers must cast ballots on whether or not to produce wool on their farms, according to the new agreement between the secretary of agriculture and the American Sheep Producers council for the sales promotion of lambs and wool.

If the agreement is approved, deductions will be made from government wool and lamb payments for 1959, 1960 and 1961 marketing years to finance the council's activities.

Extension of the agreement requires a favorable vote by growers having two-thirds of the volume of production represented in the referendum

Housing Fish, Game Division Grows Into Full-Blown Feud

Governor Thinks Commission Has Challenged His Rights, Authority

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — What might have been a routine administrative matter handled by anonymous subordinates in the state bureau of engineering has turned into a full-blown and heavily publicized quarrel between Gov. Nelson and the state conservation commission about housing arrangements for the commission and its big staff.

The seemingly trivial matter has been magnified into a bitter feud because of the public awareness that Nelson is a Democrat who has tried to unseat the six conservation commissioners who owe their seats to Republican predecessors.

It has taken on any angry tone because the governor feels his rights and his authority are being challenged, and the conservation officials feel they may be the victims of political spite.

Heavy Publicity
The usually heavy publicity exposure of conservation affairs has also aggravated the incident, frozen the attitudes of the principals, and eliminated the possibility of negotiation and compromise.

John Wyngaard, the Post-Crescent Madison correspondent, has closely attended Wisconsin conservation commission affairs for more than 20 years. This is his appraisal of the increasingly bitter quarrel between the commission and Gov. Nelson about the latter's order to the commission to vacate quarters occupied for 19 years in the state office building in downtown Madison.

When Conservation Commission Chairman Arthur MacArthur of Janesville consulted a Republican party publicity man about a press release on the subject, Nelson responded indignantly with the charge that it provided proof of "politics in conservation" and revived the demand for the abolition and recreation of the commission which the legislature had defeated last spring.

One Department
Here is the way the affair started:

Gov. Nelson's new department of administration started rescheduling office space in the state office building several months ago, as a result of the completion of a big new wing on that building.

They concluded that the centralization of other agen-

moving into a vacant store building on another side of Madison that had been spurned by private tenants, and that the location would be inconvenient for employees as well as the public. The commission asked the governor for a delay for purposes of negotiation, and the request was reported in the newspapers together with the fact that the commissioners were prepared to resist the order.

Press Releases

The publicity angered Nelson, who believed he had already worked out an arrangement with Voigt. He started putting out his own press releases, in what turned out to be a series. The conservation commissioners responded, and in the climax, MacArthur asked for still more delay in a public statement about which he consulted Philip Sellinger, publicity man for the state GOP committee.

If the progress of Wisconsin fish and game and forestry programs is related to the effort put upon them by the highest officials of the conservation department, there has been some setback in them during the last two months. For nearly 10 weeks most of the time and thought of the conservation administration has been devoted to housekeeping, rather than the management and preservation of natural resources.

Eye Fund Source For Wolf Study

Law School Research Money May Be Tapped for Resources Work

The use of University of Wisconsin law school research money to assist in the financing of the proposed Wolf river valley water resources study is being explored by the legislative council.

Earl Sachse, council secretary, said the law faculty has some federal and private money available for studies of water resources management problems and may be willing to collaborate in the Wolf river study asked by the Wolf River Improvement association and referred by the legislature last summer to the council.

Sachse said the Wolf river investigation might be useful as a "pilot study" for the law school researchers.

Some members of the council, meanwhile, have indicated a "go slow" attitude on the Wolf river study proposal.

Sen. W. W. Clark of Wood County, one of its officers, has warned his colleagues that such a state-sponsored investigation of a particular watershed will probably lead to demands for similar explorations in other districts of the state which the council probably won't be able to deny.

Gene Garrow of New London, president of the improvement association of private citizens, has been proposed as a citizen member of the council's water resources committee when it is set up. Earlier in the year he delivered an enthusiastic recital of the possibilities of more effective exploitation of the resources of the lower Wolf river valley, but said that a state study must precede any development plan.

'59 Setline Season to End Wednesday

The 1959 setline season closes next Wednesday and all lines must be removed from the water not later than one-half hour after sundown on that day, according to Outagamie County Game Warden Chuck Wranosky.

Some people have the impression, Wranosky said, that it is permissible to leave an unbaited line in the water and remove it any time. This is not the case, he warned. All setlines must be removed by the end of the month.

Some setline activity is still going on in the Wolf river. Fewer big "bullheads" have been taken this summer than previous years.

Game Farm Birds Can be Used For Training; Permit Needed

Live birds obtained from a licensed game farm may be used in hunting dog trials or in hunting dog training, under a permit system, according to Wisconsin Conservation department regulations revised this summer.

Individuals interested in using game farm birds in training hunting dogs may do so under free permit which can be issued for a maximum of one year. If the use of those birds is to include shooting, this may be provided in each permit on a maximum of 10 separate areas, 40-acre parcels.

Birds must be tagged with the locked band before removal from the licensed game farm and the dog trainer should have a receipt issued by the game farm.

The Warden Speaks

Be Sure of Rules When You Build Duck Blind

BY CHUCK WRANOSKY
Outagamie County Game Warden

The time is again with us when hunters will be looking for a place to hunt waterfowl and some will be building their blinds. A few words of caution are in order.

Wisconsin regulations prohibit the hunting of any ducks, geese, coot, rails or gallinules from open water. Open water is defined as any water outside or beyond a natural growth of vegetation extending over the water surface and of such height as to offer partial or whole concealment for the hunter. Therefore, if you build your blind in open water, you will be in violation to hunt from it. Also, if you build your blind where there are very few weeds and these weeds die or freeze down, you will be in violation to hunt from it.

Another word of caution. If you build a blind on the water, it is also your responsibility to remove it at the end of the hunting season.

Section 29.288 of the Wisconsin statutes prohibits the placing or leaving of any solid waste material in any waters or on the ice. Violation of this section carries a fine of up to $100 plus revocation of all licenses for one year.

May I use a .410 shotgun for hunting? Yes, a .410 shotgun may be used to hunt any game where a larger shotgun may be used, or animal is to be shot off the limits of the licensed game farm.

Permits for hunting dog trials must be secured if birds furnished by the conservation commission are used. game birds or animals obtained from a licensed game farm are to be used or shot, or the trial is to be conducted on lands under the jurisdiction of the commission. Birds furnished by the conservation department for trial use cannot be shot.

Under Control
The department said no permit is needed in training operations if birds are kept under control on leash or by shackling and are properly tagged. A permit will be required, however, if the bird

Trapping Interest Down in State as Pelt Prices Sink

Mink Kill Up but Other Species Show Comparatively Low Yields

The interest in wild fur harvesting in Wisconsin continues to decline.

Numbers of licensed trappers and trap tags purchased decreased during the last three annual seasons, according to a report prepared for the state conservation commission. There is evident a correlation between the trapping volume and the condition of the wild fur market.

Muskrats Down
The 1958-59 season reports show comparatively low yields of the principal fur, with the exception of mink which showed a slight increase.

The muskrat total declined to about 495,000 for the state.

Wausau Girl to Attend India Agriculture Fair

Washington — Eileen Niedermeier, Wausau, Wis., will attend the first World Agriculture fair in New Delhi, India, Dec. 11 to Feb. 14.

Miss Niedermeier, a home demonstration agent, will staff a simulated county extension office at the fair.

Reports from trappers showed 32,680 mink taken. The only other important commercial wild fur species is beaver. The state recorded a harvest of 11,515 beaver skins, a decline of more than a fifth from the previous year in spite of season and bag policies intended to encourage a harvest.

The leading muskrat counties in the state in recent years have been Dodge, Buffalo, Grant, Burnett, Vernon, LaCrosse, Barron, Vilas, Crawford and Dane, in that order.

Dodge County
Dodge usually leads all other counties by a considerable margin, reflecting the favorable wetlands environment for the creatures.

The principal beaver harvesting is in the far northern regions of the state, with Vilas and Iron counties usually accounting for most of the pelts and others in the far northern tier following.

hunting accident or who causes an accident while hunting or trapping, shall file a report with the nearest Conservation Warden within ten days of the injury.

May I carry a knocked-down firearm in a car without a carrying case? No. A firearm must be unloaded and enclosed within a carrying case when carried in or on any automobile or vehicle.

Must a gun be unloaded when carried in a motor boat? Yes. It is unlawful to carry in or on any motor-driven boat while the motor is running, any firearm or bow-unless such firearm is unloaded and unless such bow is unstrung.

Lawrence Choir Set For NBC Radio Series

Taped Music Series of 43 Other Programs in Use by 36 Stations

BY JINGO Appleton's Lawrence college choir will be heard on NBC radio's "Great Choirs of America" series the next four Sunday mornings.

The choir, directed by LaVahn Maesch, is getting its widest publicity in years not only through network radio shows, but also by a wide distribution of a taped music series of 43 programs.

Robert A. Peterson, of the college publicity office, reports that 19 eastern and 17 southern radio stations are using the series.

Attention WBAY-TV: Put down Norma Freeland, 338 S. Clay street, Green Bay, as one of those music lovers who want the Bernstein concert early next year.

"Coming from New York City," she writes, "I have experienced these wonderful concerts and have found them informative as well as thoroughly enjoyable."

Fall TV Shows Repeating 1958

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY New York — Autumn has bowed in officially but television's fall-winter season is still wide open. So far the parade of shows hasn't given us much to cheer about.

The roll call includes 20 shows from last year and 17 newcomers.

Most of the new entries have been pallid carbon copies of things that were popular last year. The westerns are so much like identical twins that this reviewer can't tell one cowpoke or one story line from another.

The new season has been so dreary that a smooth half-hour dramatic show starring June Allyson seems like a tour-de-force, and a pleasant evening of Jerome Kern like a love letter from NBC.

Writer Puts Actor Before Script Man

New York — The player comes ahead of the writer in the Broadway plans of producer Anna Sosenko.

Having obtained the stage rights to "Age Cannot Withstand," a book about the romance of actress Eleonora Duse and Gabriele D'Annunzio, Miss Sosenko is first seeking her feminine lead.

After that she will choose an adapter. Her idea is that knowing who will play the role should help the playwright create his script.

Crosby Boys Smash Hit

Only Bing Not At Opening in Moulin Rouge

BY JAMES BACON

Hollywood — Bing Crosby's four oldest sons made their hometown night club debut to a cheering audience that included almost every Hollywood name but Bing himself.

In the Moulin Rouge opening night audience were Mickey Cohen, Maurice Chevalier, Jack Benny, Louis Prima, Keely Smith, Tommy Sands, Sal Mineo, Ray Anthony, Connie Stevens, Jody McCrea, Stella Stevens, Peggy Lee, Jimmy Durante, Johnny Mathis and Jack Haley.

The four Crosbys invested $35,000 in their act and it looked it.

Smooth Job It was a smooth performance that brought encore after encore from the crowd. Old Dad would have been proud had he been there.

A close friend of Bing said the father plans to catch the boys later in the engagement. He has yet to see them perform since they broke in the act three months ago.

"Bing," the friend said, "does not want to share the spotlight with the boys. He'll say in some night, sit in the balcony and leave before anyone knows he's been there. You know Bing, he doesn't like fuss of any kind."

Public Feud Bing and Gary, the eldest, have been publicly feuding for some time. Within the last week, the father has dined with all the boys except Gary.

The boys mostly sing but there's a lot of comedy with most of the fast quips going to Gary. One big laugh comes when he chides his brothers, spotlight with the boys. He'll say: "Kathy Grant's husband wouldn't like that."

Public Feud Bing and Gary, the eldest, have been publicly feuding for some time. Within the last week, the father has dined with all the boys except Gary.

Brillion Seeks to Develop With Aid Of New Committee

Civic Progress, Cooperation Goal; Survey by JCCs Planned

Brillion — Plans to gain public cooperation in municipal and civic improvement projects took shape here Thursday night with the formation of a community development committee to guide Brillion toward new progress.

Initial plans call for the Junior Chamber of Commerce to conduct a survey of the city to determine the most pressing areas for development.

Organization of a community council will come later, it was said. Tom Hoyt was appointed to contact representatives of all organizations within the city with an eye toward obtaining council membership.

Extension Division

Kenneth Rindt and B. Wilson, representatives of the community development division of the university of Wisconsin extension, were on hand Thursday to help the community get its project underway.

After the survey is completed and needs of the city evaluated, a master plan of action will be composed. From this master plan will come a listing of critical projects which need attention.

Two Types

These projects, it was said, will fall into two divisions—municipal and civic. The municipal projects will require the cooperation of the city council while civic work can be arranged with social organizations.

The projects will be arranged by field and work will be channeled accordingly by the community council. The projects may include a health service, beautification of the community, recreation programs and industrial development.

With the victory, Wrightstown remained in a 3-way tie for first place in the Little Nine conference with a 2-0 record. Omro has lost twice. On a series of ground plays, the winners moved the ball to the 15 where Danny Lamers toured end for the touchdown. The try for the extra point failed.

Omro threatened twice in the second half pushing to the 16 and 14-yard markers. However, the Wrightstown defense stiffened and held on downs.

New Holstein 24, Kiel 2.

BY DON KAMPFER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Chilton — After throwing a scare into the favored Tigers by grabbing an early, 6-0 lead the scrappy Brillion Lions succumbed to the relentless Chilton ground attack and alert defense and accepted a 27-6 setback Friday night on the winners' field. The victory kept the Tigers in a tie for first place with Valdars which posted its second straight loop shutout by blanking Sheboygan Falls, 18-0.

Rain, ranging from a pelt-ding downpour to a light drizzle, fell constantly throughout the game keeping play on the conservative and driving all but the most ardent fans to shelter.

Twin Act

The Tigers' double set of twins, Pete and Mike Hoffmann and Joe and John Ketter, figured in all the Chilton scoring as Mike Hoffmann ran over a pair of touchdowns and the Ketter boys each tallied once.

Brillion ran the opening kickoff back to its 45 and punted after failing to secure a first down. The Lions received a return punt minutes later when penalties thwarted a budding Tiger drive and returned it to the Chilton 46. Hard running Al Puser ripped off 17 yards to the 26 and a sideline pass carried to the 13. On second down, Quarterback Ken Belanger rolled out around his left end and went over for the score. The conversion attempt failed and Brillion led, 6-0.

The visitors' defense stiffened to halt a Tiger drive on the ensuing kickoff and the fired up Lions downed a Tiger punt on their own 10. Two shots at the line by Belanger and Puser gave the losers a first down on the 30 when Tiger line-backer Joe Ketter picked a Lion fumble out of the air and ran 30 unmoled yards into the end zone. Chilton converted and took a 7-6 lead at the quarter.

Second Period Even

Neither team generated a serious threat during the second period as heavy rains swept the field. However, Chilton was 20 yards from paydirt when the gun sounded ending a nip-and-tuck first half.

From the opening kickoff, the second half was all Chilton's. The Tigers marched 84 yards for their second TD with Mike Hoffmann romping the final 24 around left end. Pete Hoffmann's 18-yard run was the big gainer in the drive before the scoring jaunt. A successful conversion gave Chilton a 14-6 lead which remained unchanged during the remainder of the third period.

Early in the final frame, with the ball on the Chilton 42 and the Tigers in possession, Al Woelfel took a short pass from Don Hoffmann, pitched to Mike Hoffmann who outsped the entire defense on a 58-yard pass-and-run scoring play.

Scores on Interception

Trailing by two touchdowns, Brillion opened up its passing attack only to have John Ketter pick off a Brillion aerial and return it 52 yards for the fourth and final score of the game.

In the waning minutes of the contest a pass interception on the 3-yard line capped a Lion goal line stand and prevented further Tiger scoring.

Unofficial statistics show Chilton with 209 yards rushing and 76 passing. Brillion gained 126 rushing yards and 18 in the air making six first downs to the Tigers' 10.

Comets Win, 32 to 0, In Homecoming Fray

'Paca Downs Westfield for 1st Win Of Season: Rain Halts Celebration

BY JOHN WELLS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Waupaca — A shifty backfield supported by a staunch line carried the Waupaca Comets to a 32 to 0 victory over Westfield Friday night in homecoming till for the Comets.

It was the Comets' first victory of the season after they dropped openers to Antigo and Nekoosa. Heavy rains all day Friday postponed homecoming festivities.

Showed Superiority

Skies cleared at the start of the game, and a sandy field soaked up the day's water. Waupaca demonstrated definite superiority over Westfield. The visitors never caught fire until the last quarter. They whacked into Waupaca's line for three quarters before attempting passes and end runs which gained ground.

Waupaca began its first drive after Gary Nielson blocked Westfield's first punt on the 15-yard line. The TD came on a charge by Vern Johnson from the 8 yard line. Johnson ran for the extra point and the 7-0 score.

The Comets regained control again in the first quarter when Westfield fullback, Ken-ny Mittlestaedt, fumbled and Waupaca recovered on the Westfield 29-yard line. End runs by Tailback Neilson and line plunges by Halback Gary Nielson carried the Comets to the 5 where Nielson went through center to make the score 13 to 0.

Blocked Punt

The Comets recovered a blocked punt early in the second quarter and moved to the 2, but were stopped cold. Westfield was forced to kick behind the goal line on a fourth down. It was blocked by Werner Webster. Richard Green dove on the ball for the next TD making the score at halftime 20 to 0.

An uneventful third quarter flared with their own 45 and a touchdown pass. Vern Johnson flipped to Neilson who was alone near the goal line. The extra point kick missed and the score stood 26 to 0.

Westfield caught fire after the Comet TD and began end runs and extensive passing. However, one of the first passes by Halback Tom Christian from his own 31-yard line was intercepted by Comet Gary Rohloff who tripped 35 yards for a touchdown, making the score 32 to 0.

Kennedy Piles Up Solid Tour Gains

Tramps Political Trails of Western, Northern Wisconsin Amid Applause, Warm Reception

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Viroqua — Sen. John Kennedy continues today his western and northern Wisconsin political trail tramping, selling his presidential candidacy in his own suave way amid mounting signs of solid gains.

The man regarded by most Wisconsin Democratic politicians as having a big lead on the affections of voters in eastern Wisconsin cities attracted impressive audiences during two days of stumping the market towns and courthouse squares of the western counties. Today he is heading into the far north, where ranking American politicians have rarely ventured.

Local Democrats in southwestern and western districts were surprised and delighted by the drawing power of the handsome, touselled 42-year-old.

Little New
Kennedy offered little that was exciting in his frequent but brief speeches. It was mostly the orthodox Democratic approach to National and international affairs, spoken moderately, and at such a fast clip that sometimes the audiences appeared to be interrupting him when they applauded.

While the crowd responses were not tumultuous, they were warm. Local observers were generally persuaded that if Kennedy decides to enter the Wisconsin presidential primary next spring to stake a claim on this state's 31 delegates, he will be the favorite. But it is also perfectly clear that Kennedy is not certain he will be required to take such a risk. The momentum of his candidacy may be great enough without such a ballot test.

This expedition into the rural precincts was obviously planned for its publicity effect, rather than for strategic gain in the way of numerically important backers. Kennedy privately grumbled at the distance between population centers in this thinly inhabited region.

A Democrat filling a dance hall in Prairie du Chien is a sight not often seen. A Democratic politician talking to overflow luncheons and breakfasts in such towns as Viroqua and Boscobel is a greater rarity.

Western Wisconsin is a symbol of the changing political alignment of the state in its recent voting record—with the Democrats making substantial gains—but it retains in the public mind its historic identification with the Republicans.

Gloomy Strain
There is a strain of gloom in the typical Kennedy speech, and especially when he touches upon foreign affairs. The Russians are outproducing us, he reminds repeatedly, and it remains to be demonstrated whether free America can in the end beat a Soviet nation in which a dictator can harness all material and human resources for the nation's economic supremacy.

Kennedy repeatedly talked about the need for higher farm price supports and a solution to the farm surplus problem, but was vague about details.

He warns his party mates that they cannot campaign exclusively by denouncing agriculture. Sec. Benson, but then proceeds to do so. As Kennedy paints the picture for the farm oriented listeners hereabouts, the nation's agricultural programs are in the hands of a Republican administration which is out of sympathy with their purposes and their provisions.

Food Givenaway
The most concrete idea on disposition of farm surpluses the candidate has offered in Wisconsin is a demand for an immense expansion of food distribution to the underfed in America and abroad.

Eastern reporters perked up their ears when Kennedy several times remarked that while the Democrats are likely to retain their control of the congress with relative ease, it may be difficult to recapture the presidency. The executive arm has become the vital arm of national government, he asserts, in a time when military and diplomatic affairs are so vital to the nation's welfare. The man chosen president next year, he adds, will almost certainly serve for eight years—years that will forever decide America's position in the competition with Russia.

Urgent Warning
Always there is the urgent warning note about Khrushchev the complete realist and deadly competitor, the refrain that however compelling are the questions of hog markets and milk surplus, the fate of Americans will be resolved in the field of foreign policy controlled by the president.

Can the American system endure? The critical years of decision are just ahead. It is a somber hour in the history of the great republic, says the almost boyish politician, who manages to put across the idea without saying so right out that he is a willing volunteer for the leadership.

Electronics Uses Growing In Hospitals

Greater Exploration Made by Doctors Despite Tradition

New York — Despite traditional caution, doctors and hospitals are showing increased willingness to explore advanced technologies, thereby opening a new field for the electronics industry, declares Electronics, a national magazine.

An indication of this trend is acceptance by medical men of a high-speed, automatic blood-cell counter just three years after its introduction. The device replaces the slow less exact technique of examining blood samples under a microscope.

Electronics systems are also finding applications in hospital safety, administration and therapy. Office computers, ultrasonic "dry" cleaners and smoke and fire detectors have earned widespread use.

Radiological detectors guard against gamma and X-radiation in hospital laboratories. Closed circuit TV helps nurses watch corridors and patients in critical condition.

Gamma ray sterilization is one new development likely to be adopted soon, the magazine says. Cold rays from a cobalt-60 radiator should reduce labor costs, permit sterilizing such heat-sensitive materials as bone grafts and plastics and counteract the dangerous rise in penicillin-resistant infections by permitting complete sterilization of mattresses and bedding.

Charge Official With Threatening Father of Cadet

Seattle — The operator of a small-time suburban military academy, already in trouble on a charge of mistreating a cadet, was accused Thursday of threatening the father of another student with a gun.

Thomas H. Hopkins was arrested, booked and released on $3,000 bail on the new charge of second degree assault filed by Deputy Prosecutor Charles Z. Smith.

The complaint said Hopkins waved a gun at Richard H. Bratton of Lake Stevens, Wash., Sept. 5 and ordered him off the property of the Hopkins Military academy near Redmond.

Withdrawing Son
Smith said the incident occurred in Hopkins' office where Bratton had gone to give notice he was withdrawing his son from the school, which has an enrollment of 18 students and a yearly tuition of $1,700.

Hopkins had no immediate comment on the latest charge, but had denied any wrongdoing in connection with the previous accusations against him.

He was charged Monday with third degree assault for allegedly using a judo hold on a 14-year-old cadet and ordering him fed only bread and water while being kept under guard for five days.

Great Population, Longer Life Seen In 1975 by Doctor

Winston-Salem, N. C. — The United States will have a population in 1975 of 210 to 230 million people, and a child born then in this country may have a life expectancy of 60 years.

This was foreseen Wednesday night in a talk by Dr. John J. Hanlon, Philadelphia's director of public health services, to the North Carolina Academy of Preventive Medicine.

"The millions of babies born during the last decade will become marriageable during the 1960s," he said, "producing an additional spurt in the number of births." Public health measures, improved nutrition and other beneficial factors will increase longevity, he added.

Ike, Khrushchev Talk Over Critical Issues

The stage tomorrow afternoon, after the Camp David talks. He is scheduled to hold an hour-long Washington news conference and make a subsequent hour-long television speech prior to his departure for Moscow tomorrow night.

But Khrushchev the traveling quip-maker got in a few last licks before Khrushchev the diplomat took over at Camp David.

As Eisenhower and he stood at the lodge door posing for photographs, Eisenhower said of the busy, crowding photographers: "I'm glad they don't shoot."

"It's lucky," Khrushchev rejoined with a chuckle, "that Mr. Garst is not here. If he were he would try to organize this his own way."

The reference was to Roswell Garst, the farmer who was Khrushchev's host near Coon Rapids, Iowa, three days ago. The crush of newsmen on the farm was so great that Garst at one time fought a running battle with kicks and corn stalks against onrushing photographers.

Well Guarded
"Everything seems to be quiet along this front," said Eisenhower with a grin. Said Khrushchev: "All the soldiers are peacefully inclined."

As the two exchanged these pleasantries, marine guards stood on each side of them. Scores of others in fatigue uniforms, wearing campaign hats and sidearms were deployed about the wooded camp and posted at short intervals inside its high steel mesh fence.

Newsmen and photographers, admitted briefly to record the arrival of the two men and their aides and advisers, were tightly confined to a small area in front of Aspen lodge. The quiet and order were in marked contrast to the hectic scenes which erupted along Khrushchev's swing around the country.

Khrushchev, Eisenhower, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Sec. of State Christian A. Herter were quartered in Aspen lodge where last March Eisenhower conferred with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Others in the party, including Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov and U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, were assigned quarters in cabins nearby.

'Other Man' to Stand Trial for Murder Plot

Oconomowoc — Municipal Judge George Johnson Thursday set Sept. 30 for trial of Edward A. Dunn, 43, Milwaukee square dance caller, on a charge of attempted murder.

Dunn is accused of trying to kill Clyde Pfeiffer, 32, Oconomowoc, after allegedly plotting with Pfeiffer's wife, Marie, 28, to lure him into a car where he could be strangled with a wire noose. The wire broke when it was pulled around Pfeiffer's neck and Pfeiffer escaped.

Two psychiatrists reported that Dunn was capable of standing trial. He has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. Mrs. Pfeiffer is awaiting sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of conspiracy to commit murder.

Satellite To Trigger Dedication

Grand Rapids, Mich. — A radio signal from Vanguard III was to give ceremonial aid today in the dedication of a new $5 million electronics plant.

The signal from the orbiting, 50-pound satellite was to trigger a mechanism which will peel drapes away from a dedicatory plaque at the huge Lear, Inc., installation in suburban Paris township.

The U. S. Army's astro-observation station at Fort Monmouth, N.J., was to relay the signal.

Main speaker at the ceremony is Roy W. Johnson, director of the defense department's research projects agency. Dedication officials said either Defense Sec. Neil H. McElroy or Deputy Sec. Thomas S. Gates were to call in the signal.

The plaque unveiling precedes a public open house which will allow visitors to view an assembly of control devices for aircraft and missiles.

The inspection called for defense department approval because of the classified nature of Lear operations.

May Demand Death Penalty In Love Slaying

Los Angeles — The prosecutor says he is considering demanding the death penalty for Carole Tregoff, charged with murdering her lover's wife.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Fred N. Whichello said Thursday he also is considering asking that her $25,000 bail be revoked. Whichello originally said he would not seek the death penalty for the attractive 22-year-old divorcee. Miss Tregoff is accused with Dr. Bernard Finch, 41, in the July 18 fatal shooting of Mrs. Barbara Finch, 33.

Whichello indicated his possible action upon return from Las Vegas, Nev., where he questioned Donald Williams, 22. Williams had told police that Miss Tregoff asked him to introduce her to "two rough guys who will take care of anybody."

Williams said he introduced her to Richard Keachle and Jack Cody. Investigators said both corroborated his story. Cody, under arrest in Minneapolis, said Miss Tregoff gave him $1,400. Keachle is in jail in Las Vegas on a morals charge.

Cody, arrested last week in Milwaukee, was taken to Minneapolis, where he recently escaped from a workhouse.

Schultz Chairman of Committee to Pick New Industrial Directors

Clarence H. Schultz has been named chairman of a committee that will nominate six directors of the chamber of commerce's industrial division for the 1959-60 year starting Nov. 1.

Committee members are John Dutcher, Lloyd Taul, Ben A. Pfeiffer and Lloyd R. Watson. First meeting is 4 p.m. Monday at the chamber office.

Retiring directors are Eugene B. Brownell, Anthony E. Harrart, F. H. Orbison, F. A. Meythaler, Talbot Peterson and George G. Ward.

son as party leader in this Democratic capital city was shown when 300 admirers waited for a couple of hours for him to turn up at the Democratic club's reception.

In his few remarks, Stevenson expressed concern Khrushchev had found America complacent, more interested in television and tail fins, than "in affirmation of our great purpose."

Stevenson related he met Khrushchev in Iowa two days earlier and said there has been strikingly little press accounting of the probable reasons for Khrushchev's tour. He outlined them as including publicity triumphs within Russia and across the world; a desire to dramatize the reversal of the Dulles resistance to negotiation with the Soviet; anxiety to avoid a break-down in negotiations over Berlin, and a design to promote disarmament that would allow Russia to divert resources to domestic consumption "and the greatest struggle of all — for the minds of the uncommitted peoples of the world."

Great Wine Year, French Experts Say

BY GEORGE McARTHUR
Paris — When a Frenchman says 1959 is a great year, he's talking about wine, not politics.

The prospects for this year's vintage have Frenchmen smacking their lips in anticipation. The wine is good everywhere. In the rich Burgundy district experts say this year's product may surpass the exceptional richness of 1929, one of the best years of the past century.

Fall is the season of the "vendanges" in France — when the grapes are hauled in, fermented and put in casks. In many wine producing districts a rich aroma blankets the countryside. Knowledgeable buyers and restaurant keepers seek out good fields like bees.

Morton Cites Top Runners

New York — Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton says a swing around the country indicates many persons favor a Nixon - Rockefeller presidential ticket.

The senator from Kentucky held a news conference Thursday after attending a luncheon with GOP state chairmen of 10 northeastern states.

Morton wouldn't say whether Vice President Richard M. Nixon or New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was favored for the top spot, adding: "Some people want it one way, and others want it the other way."

Rockefeller has definitely stated he was not interested in the vice presidential nomination. He has left the door open for head man on the GOP ticket.

11 Castro Army Vets To Receive Medical Aid

Boston — Eleven veterans of Fidel Castro's Cuban army will arrive in Boston next week to begin treatment at the Veterans Administration hospital in West Roxbury.

The hospital said the men, all paraplegics, are coming through state department arrangements and that the project will cost the VA nothing.

Dr. Ralph S. Metheny, manager, said: "Beds are available and this plan will in no way deprive an American veteran in need of this type of treatment."

Painting Sessions

Weekly evening painting sessions will again be held at the Worcester Art center on the Lawrence campus on Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m., according to Thomas Dietrich, college artist-in-residence. Townspeople and students may use the facilities of the art lab at that time.

Matson Makes Rams' Debut Against Giants

Browns, Steelers Also Kick Off Pro Season Tonight

BY JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ollie Matson, the Los Angeles Rams' "9-man gang," goes on display tonight against one of the most respected defenses in pro football when the New York Giants invade Memorial coliseum.

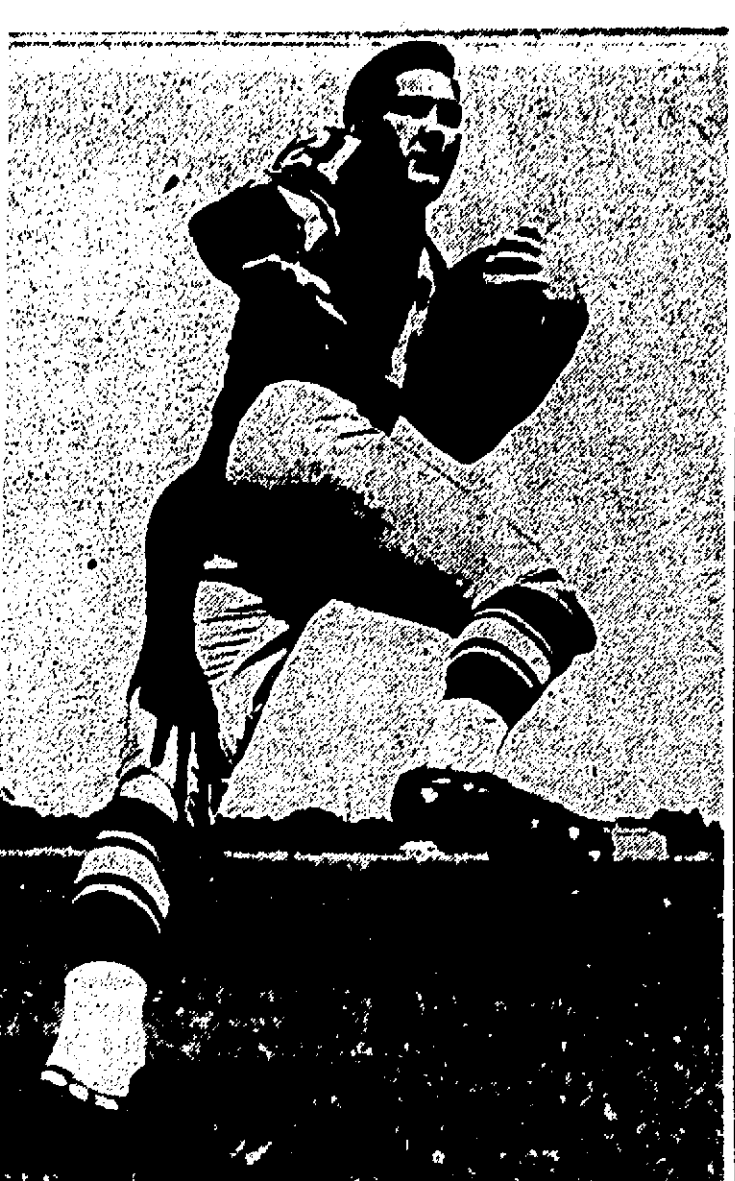

The game between the defending Eastern conference champions and the Western's title-minded Rams is one of two nationally televised Saturday openers on a full weekend of games kicking off the National Football League's fortieth season.

Expect 58,000

The Cleveland Browns are at Pittsburgh tonight in a meeting matching the Giants' most-feared foes in the East.

A crowd of 58,000 is expected at the Coliseum and 30,000.

Braves Fall One Game Behind LA With Only Two Left on Schedule

Last-Place Philadelphia Stuns Milwaukee, 6-3, After Dodgers Nip Cubs in 11 Innings, 5-4

By The Associated Press

Jack Meyer, a right-hander who's been a sore-arm guy with Philadelphia, hadn't been a winner in more than three months. Mostly a reliever, he hadn't pitched more than five innings in better than a year. He hadn't beaten Milwaukee in four years.

But Friday night he had the Braves hangin' by their thumbs.

Behind Meyer's 4-hit, 5 2-3 inning shutout relief job, the last place Phillies beat the Braves and Lew Burdette, 6-3, in the rain at Milwaukee, plunking them out of a first place tie with Los Angeles in the fast-closing National league race.

The Dodgers, now one game ahead with two to play, put away a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Gil Hodges' eleventh-inning home run and dandy relief work from Larry Sherry.

Los Angeles can nail the pennant today—if the Dodgers can couple victory over the Cubs with another victory by the Phils. A sweep of their two at Chicago and the Dodgers are home free, no matter what the Braves do today and Sunday.

Southpaw Johnny Podres (14-8) is the Dodger choice to day against Dave Illman (7-11). The Braves shoot with Warren Spahn (20-15) against the Phils' Robin Roberts (15-16).

4 in a Row

San Francisco? The third place Giants trail by 24 and still have three to play after Friday night's rainout at St. Louis. It's Sam Jones (20-15) and Jack Sanford (15-12) in a two-night pair today against "Vinegar Bend" Mizell (13-9) and Larry Jackson (13-13).

The Phillies made it four in a row over Burdette, the 21-game winner who hasn't beaten them since May 22. They scored twice in the first and then tagged the big right-hander with his fifteenth defeat in a 4-run third capped by Gene Freese's twenty-second homer, with two on.

Meyer gave up nothing but singles, walked two, stuck out three and retired the last six men in order.

He hadn't worked more than five innings since July 28 of last year, when he lost a complete game to the Giants 2-1. He hadn't beaten the Braves since Aug. 23, 1955 when he beat Burdette in relief.

Lose Mantilla

The Braves regained Logan, sidelined by an infected toe, at short, but lost second baseman Felix Mantilla, who suffered a cut lip when hit by Joe Koppe's badhop grounder in the third inning.

Packers and Bears Clash In '59 Opener

Title-Contending Bruins Favored Over Lombardi's Renovated Team

BY ART DALEY
Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — The Packers make their official debut under Vince Lombardi in the 81st Packer game at City Stadium Sunday afternoon.

A sellout crowd of 32,500 will watch (1) the unveiling of a rebuilt Packer eleven that showed some promise by winning four of six pre-season games and (2) a Bear team that has definite designs on the '59 championship.

Kickoff for the National Football league opener is 1:06.

The Packers loom as something of a mystery because of changes in playing personnel—not to mention the new coaching staff—but the experts see nothing mystifying. They have named the Bears a 64-point favorite.

Bears Are Solid

The Bears are solid, man, since they are improved over a year ago when they posted an 8-4 record. And they have been ranked by neutral observers as one of three teams most likely to win the '59 Western title.

The Packers have come a long way since Lombardi took over as general manager and head coach last winter, but they were a "fur" piece in the last year, what with the worst record in history, 1-10-1.

Lombardi renovated the club with nearly 15 new faces—plus a bright and winning attitude.

Lombardi has named Lamar Mc Han, a special Bear foe as a Cardinal, to start at quarterback.

Mc Han, who will be backed by Bart Starr and Joe Francis, has had some fierce battles against the Bears, and the one he likes to remember best is the 56-14 test three years ago.

The protection and openings up front will be up to Jim Ringo at center, Jerry Kra-

Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston, after learning Milwaukee had lost to Philadelphia, 6-3, to give his club a game lead, said Friday night:

"I'm not going to do any popping off. I said before we opened this big 3-game series that if we lose one, we'd have a good chance. If we lost two, we'd be out of it and if we won three we'd have a good chance of taking it all.

Haney Bemoans Squandered Chances in Gloomy Wigwam

Phils Jubilant In New Role As Spoilers

BY JACK HAND

Milwaukee —(AP) One down and two to go is the sad, sad story in the gloomy wigwam of the Milwaukee Braves.

"We had our chances—a lot of chances," said Manager Fred Haney in the quiet clubhouse after Friday night's 6-3 defeat by the last-place Phils.

The rainy Friday night was an evening of bitter frustration for the Braves who led the National league by a full game as recently as Tuesday night. Now they are fast running out of games and chances to salvage their third straight pennant.

Didn't Have a Thing

The league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers must lose at least one of their final games and the Braves must win their last two from the Phillies to salvage a tie.

Friday night's defeat was a staggering blow to the Braves. They used Lew Burdette, well-rested since working Sunday in Philadelphia. But the 21-game winner didn't have a thing. He was knocked out in the fourth on Gene Freese's 3-run homer, the final blow of a 4-run inning.

Jack Meyer, a relief pitcher who has been effective in late season, snuffed out the Braves after relieving starter Don Cardwell in the fourth.

Meyer's big moment in this rain-soaked game came after he had walked pinch-hitter Enos Slaughter, the first man he faced. With the bases full,

Alston Isn't Taking Anything for Granted

Dodger Manager Says He Won't Do Any Popping Off

Chicago —(AP) The Los Angeles Dodgers could win the National league pennant today or possibly come out with a tie.

With two games left to play, the Dodgers can assure themselves of a tie for the flag by defeating the Chicago Cubs and if Milwaukee should again lose to Philadelphia, the Dodgers would win it all.

Steelers Release Miner, Acquire 'Buddy' Dial

Pittsburgh —(AP) Placekicking specialist Tom Miner, fourth leading scorer in the National Football league last season with 73 points, was dropped Friday by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Coach "Buddy" Parker cut Miner loose to make room for Ed "Buddy" Dial, formerly of Rice. Dial was picked up on waivers from the New York Giants.

Dial will be in uniform for tonight's NFL opener here against the Cleveland Browns, and may see a little action as the Steelers' end department has been riddled by injuries.

Stricken Sooners May See Limited Duty Against NU

Chicago —(AP) Twelve members of the University of Oklahoma football team, victims of apparent food poisoning, may see only limited action today against northwest-ern.

The players and an assistant coach were stricken with sudden illness while eating dinner Thursday night in the Chez Parce, a Chicago night club. All were under a physician's care and reported feeling better Friday night.

Intestinal Virus

"Bud" Wilkinson, Oklahoma coach, said he could not tell whether the 12 players—five from the first team—would see action in the nationally televised game at the Northwestern university campus in suburban Evanston.

It was expected, however, that the athletes would be ready for limited duty, at least.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, said the 13 may have been made ill by food eaten either before or after the team arrived in Evanston. They could have suffered intestinal virus, he added.

Authorities said food sam-

Steelers' Butler Might Miss Browns' Game

Defensive Star Has Sprain; Saturday's Tilt Opens Season

By The Associated Press
Jack Butler is one of those guys. You know, the kid who never played high school football, then became the star end in college. The player who was overlooked in the pro draft, then goes eight full seasons in the National league without missing a game. But you seldom hear about him because he's one of those guys — a defensive back. He plays for the Pittsburgh Steelers, but he may be missing from the lineup tonight when the Cleveland Browns travel to Forbes field to open the league's fortieth season. Could Make Difference The absence of Butler, who suffered a severe ankle sprain in the final exhibition game last week, could make the difference in the battle between the top contenders for the New York Giants' Eastern conference crown. The game will be nationally televised by ABC (9 p.m., CDT) and is one of two on tonight's NFL card.

CL Discusses Atlanta's Bid For Franchise

New York — Atlanta's possible application for a franchise in the newly formed Continental Baseball league was thoroughly discussed in a 6-hour meeting with the circuit's officials.

Atlanta attorneys Joseph F. Fine and Eaton Chaikley, representing Major Sports, Inc., met Friday with Branch Rickey, Continental president, and Bill Shea, head of the league's founding committee. Major Sports, Inc., is an organization formed to pursue the possibility of getting Atlanta represented in major sports.

"The information given us by the two gentlemen from Atlanta revealed they have a group completely capable of making a strong bid for one of the three vacant franchises," in the league," said Rickey. "The only point I would be concerned about is the ability of Atlanta to produce a satisfactory stadium."

The five founding members of the circuit are New York, Toronto, Denver, Houston and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Hunter Scores TKO Victory Over Miteff

Jabs Make Mess Of Alex' Face In TV Bout

Syracuse, N. Y. — Billy Hunter of Detroit stepped high in the heavyweight ranks today after jabbing bull-like Alex Miteff to ribbons in his national television debut. Referee Joe Abraham stopped it after the seventh round of the bloody 10-round Friday night. Miteff's face was a mess and Dr. Charles Bender, Jr., refused to permit Miteff to answer the bell for the eighth. Under New York rules it was listed as an eighth round TKO. Miteff blamed what he called a "green" referee for his first loss after three good victories. He had been rated seventh among the heavies by the National Boxing association.

The 6-foot-3 1/2 Hunter, a stablemate and look-alike of "Sugar" Ray Robinson, scored repeatedly on the charging Miteff with a sharp left jab and quick combinations.

Miteff got across with several heavy blows but was behind, 4-2-2, on the cards of Judges Dick Fazio and Ed Nowakowski when Abraham stopped the fight. Abraham had scored the fight 4-2-2 for Miteff.

Miteff now has a 19-7-1 record, Hunter 13-6-2.

Sordid Baseball Chapter 8 Black Sox Received $47,000 in Payments

BY JOE REICHLER
New York — The Chicago White Sox, through the years, have had an abundance of excitement and drama, if not much success. But nothing equalled the glory and then the shame of the team that forever has become known as the infamous Black Sox. The name was hung on the 1919 Chicago team because of the World Series scandal that fall. At the time it was called "the most gigantic sports swindle in the history of America." The series, played between the White Sox and the champion Cincinnati Reds of the National league, resulted in the expulsion of eight members of the White Sox. This sordid chapter, the only such ever written into the archives of the national pastime, has been re-told and re-written countless times but even today there are still wide gaps in it. Probably the entire truth never will be known. The Reds defeated the White Sox in the 1919 World Series, five games to three. It was a best-of-9 series then. The finger of guilt wrote the epitaphs of seven White Sox stars and one White Sox substitute. The eight Black Soxers were Joe Jackson, perhaps the most natural hitter of all time; Eddie Cicotte, master of the "shine ball" and second only to Walter Johnson among American league right-handers; "Buck" Weaver, brilliant third baseman and excellent hitter; "Swede" Risberg, rangy shortstop; "Chick" Gandil, flashy fielding first baseman; Oscar "Happy" Felsch, graceful outfielder and timely hitter; Claude Williams, one of the league's top southpaws; and Fred McMullen, utility infielder. Unsullied by the scandal were such glittering stars as Eddie Collins, the peerless second baseman; Ray "Cracker" Schalk, the Hall of Fame catcher; John "Shano" Collins, the steady and dependable right fielder; "Red" Faber and Dickie Kerr, the little pitcher who turned in two of Chicago's three victories.

Bell Predicts Greatest Year, Competitively

Says NFL's Lower Teams Have Improved Greatly

Philadelphia — The National Football league will have its greatest year, competitively in 1959, Commissioner Bert Bell predicted today. Bell, discussing prospects for the league season opening Saturday night in Los Angeles with the Rams meeting the New York Giants, made these observations: He doesn't expect the league to break its 1958 attendance record of 3,006,000. Teams will earn a total of 1 1/2 million dollars in television revenue.

Finish in Black
All 12 teams should finish in the black financially. Bell said the lower teams such as Green Bay, Philadelphia and the Chicago Cardinals have improved tremendously.

Following the Giants-Rams opener Saturday night, the rest of the clubs start the league's fortieth season Sunday with the Chicago Bears at Green Bay, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Baltimore, Philadelphia at San Francisco and Washington at the Chicago Cardinals.

Melbourne — George Bracken, 135, Australia, outpointed David Oved, 133, Israel, 10.

San Francisco — Seven under par and shooting the best golf he has all year, Frank Stranahan led the pack today into the third round of the $40,000 Golden Gate Invitational tournament with a 68-67-135.

Only one stroke back of the leader and blazing around the exacting 6,628-yard Harding Park course under a bright sun were Jerry Barber, a 135-pound powerhouse, and Tommy Bolt.

Young Bob Goalby shot a 68 to stay only two strokes off Stranahan's pace. Dow Finsterwald added a 68 to his first round 70 to hang in close contention at 138.

Jack Fleck, surprise winner of the 1955 U. S. Open title, and young Mason's Rudolph, who shared the first-round lead at 67, both slipped back to 72 for 139s.

limited by the steel strike, at Forbes field to see the hometown Steelers. CBS will televise the Rams-Giants at 10:15 p.m. (CDT), and ABC the Steelers-Browns at 9 p.m. (CDT). The Baltimore Colts, who won the NFL title after 8 minutes and 15 seconds of unprecedented sudden death overtime with the Giants last December, open Sunday at home against the team they supplanted as Western conference and NFL kings — the Detroit Lions. Other Sunday games are Chicago Bears at Green Bay, Washington at Chicago Cardinals and Philadelphia at San Francisco.

The Rams have made an all-out bid to knock off the Colts by sending nine players to the Cardinals for Matson, who for six seasons was virtually the entire Cardinal running game.

Los Angeles has him in a backfield quarterbacked by Billy Wade and featuring the versatile Jon Arnett and Power-running Tom Wilson. This is the offensive ogre the Giants must face.

The Browns are the team that blew the '58 Eastern crown to the Giants by losing the final regular season game and a division playoff on successive Sundays in New York. And the Steelers are the team that lost only one game after quarterback Bobby Layne joined them for the last eight contests. Both figure they can take the Giants this time.

Cleveland bases its hopes on the roughhouse running of Jim Brown. Pittsburgh on the passing of Layne.

Major League Stars

Gil Hodges, Dodgers, doubled for two runs and a 4-2 lead, then walked winning, eleventh-inning home run for 5-4 victory over the Cubs, and one-game edge in National league.

Jack Meyer, Phillies, knocked Braves out of first-place tie, setting Al Spangler and Eddie Mathews on pop ups with bases loaded after edging in fourth inning and threw 4-hit shut out ball rest of way for 6-3 victory.

Alternate Routes Suggested For Packer Game-Goers

Green Bay — Routes around two road construction projects are suggested to motorists who will approach Green Bay's City stadium from the west and south for the Packer-Bear game Sunday.

County Traffic Director Laurence Koepen said that a large segment of Highway 54 in Brown county west from Green Bay is under construction. While the highway is not closed to vehicle traffic, its use is not advised for the heavy traffic volume Sunday, he said. He encouraged gamegoers to use Highway 29-32 as the best alternate route.

Turn Left
Koepen reported also that Cormier road, a principal east-west route to Highway 41 south of the stadium, is closed entirely between the highway and Ridge road, the street which bounds the stadium site on its west side.

He said that this will make it necessary for southbound traffic after the game, both

Packers were able to win their last two games on a total of 33 points, all scored by Hornung.

The Bears will depend on such stalwarts as Fred Williams, Bill George, Joe Fortunato, Doug Atkins, Eric Barnes and others to keep the Bays in check.

And speaking about scoring, the Bears averaged 33 points in winning five of their six non-leaguers. The cast has changed little in the names but the performers are healthier and improved over a year ago. Harlon Hill has shaken off injuries that hobbled him, and Jim Dooley has been a whiz in the exhibitions, leading the club in pass catching.

Rick Casares, Willie Gallimore and Johnny Morris carry the rushing load.

Ed Brown is scheduled to start at quarterback, but Zeke Bratkowski won't be far behind. Brown started in the opening non-looper against the Bays but it took Bratkowski to win it in the second half.

The improving Packer defense, facing its toughest offense by a long shot, will have four new faces in the starting cast — Em Tunnell at safety, Bob Freeman at cornerback, Bill Quinlan at end, and Henry Jordan at tackle. Holdovers will be at the other spots — Bobby Dillon at safety; Jesse Whitten at cornerback; Bill Forster, Tom Bettis and Dan Currie at linebackers; Nate Borden at end; and Dave Hanner at tackle.

he got Al Spangler on an out-field fly.

Eddie Mathews came up with a chance to rescue the Braves. Meyer made him loft a feeble foul pop on a 3-1 pitch.

"That really hurt," said Haney. "But we had other chances and didn't come through."

Hope for Help
"We just have to go out and win and hope the Cubs help us," said Haney. "We still have to win ours. But now we have to hope the Cubs take at least one game from the Dodgers."

Naturally, the Phils were jubilant in their new role as spoilers. They clinched last place some time ago in a lackluster season.

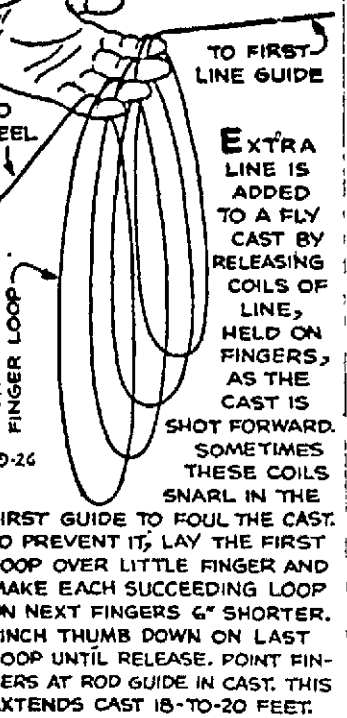

"The Cubs probably will beat the Dodgers now and it may go right down to the wire," said Manager Eddie Sawyer whose contract was renewed Thursday.

But many of the 24,192 fans (almost 20,000 below capacity) who started walking out of County stadium as the rain continued into the late innings feared the pennant was lost. The last five innings were played in a slanting rain after pausing 14 minutes during a fourth-inning shower.

Trojans Whip Panthers, 23-0

Miami Hands Tulane 26 to 7 Football Loss

By The Associated Press
Southern California's Trojans overran Pittsburgh 23-0, in an intercollegiate football game Friday night.

The favored Trojans took a 10-point lead in the first quarter.

Troy's bulky line outcharged the Panthers' outweighed forwards and the Trojans came up with far greater depth in this seventh meeting between the two in a series dating back to 1929. Friday night's win made it 4-3 for Southern Cal.

Kicks Field Goal

Quarterback Willie Wood led off with a 31-yard field goal, and soon afterward sophomore halfback Lynn Gaskill returned a punt 28 yards to the Pitt 30 to set up a touchdown. Jim Conroy made it from the one.

In the third quarter, a sophomore duo of quarterback Ben Charges, from Lancaster, Pa., and halfback Jim Naples got together on a 50-yard touchdown pass play.

Miami beat Tulane, 26-7. Bob Rosbaugh scored two of Miami's touchdowns and Frank Bouffard the other. But it was the sharp passing of Fran Curci that kept the Green Wave off balance. At one time, he hit seven bulls-eyes in a row. One of his passes was a scoring flip to Rosbaugh.

In other games, George Washington turned back Boston university, 18-14, and Iowa State trimmed Denver, 28-12.

46-yard touchdown play. The kick for the extra point was blocked.

Strong defensive play by both teams dominated the second half, although the Bulldogs on a pass play early in the third quarter broke through to the Raiders' 1-yard line. Halfback Paul Werner caught an option pass from halfback Dave Emerich.

On the next play, the Bulldogs fumbled the slippery ball and guard Glen Ankham recovered in the New London backfield and ran to the New London 35.

Both teams had two first downs in the first half and the Raiders claimed five to New London's two in the last two quarters.

Dave Emerich, a sophomore, sparked the Bulldogs with a display of hard running. He also kept the Raiders in their own territory during most of the game with his long punts.

41 NBA Contests Will Be Televised

New York — Forty-one of the 312 games on the tentative schedule of the National Basketball association will be nationally televised over the NBC network. Eight playoff games also will be carried.

The first telecast will be an exhibition between the Philadelphia Warriors and St. Louis Hawks at Kansas City Oct. 11. The opening scheduled game, between the Boston Celtics and the Cincinnati Royals at the Boston garden Oct. 17, also will be televised.

Stranahan Leads Barber and Bolt By 1 at Frisco

San Francisco — Seven under par and shooting the best golf he has all year, Frank Stranahan led the pack today into the third round of the $40,000 Golden Gate Invitational tournament with a 68-67-135.

Only one stroke back of the leader and blazing around the exacting 6,628-yard Harding Park course under a bright sun were Jerry Barber, a 135-pound powerhouse, and Tommy Bolt.

Young Bob Goalby shot a 68 to stay only two strokes off Stranahan's pace. Dow Finsterwald added a 68 to his first round 70 to hang in close contention at 138.

Jack Fleck, surprise winner of the 1955 U. S. Open title, and young Mason's Rudolph, who shared the first-round lead at 67, both slipped back to 72 for 139s.

Braves Lose, Trail Dodgers By One Game

Haney used 18 players in a vain attempt to pull out a victory.

Three singles, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly gave Philadelphia a pair of runs in the first, but the Braves got one back in their half on a 400-foot homer by Eddie Mathews. The blast was Mathews' forty-fifth of the year and kept him in a tie for the National league lead with Chicago's Ernie Banks.

Walks First Man

Burdette, seeking his twenty-second victory, retired the side in order in the second, but started the third by walking the first man. A bad-hop grounder by Joe Koppe hit second baseman Felix Mantilla in the mouth, and Ed Bouchee followed with a run-scoring single.

Wally Post looked at a third strike, but Gene Freese belted a 1-strike pitch into the left field stands for his twenty-second homer. That was all for Burdette, who was charged with his fifteenth defeat.

Milwaukee picked up a pair of runs in the bottom of the third when Joe Adcock singled and Lee Maye lined a safety to center. Richie Ashburn attempted a shoestring catch of Maye's hit and the ball bounced through his legs. Both Adcock and Maye scored on the 3-base error.

Philadelphia starter Don Cardwell got Johnny Logan on an infield grounder, but then walked two men. Meyer came in on relief and proceeded to walk pinch-hitter Enos Slaughter to load the bases. Rookie Al Spangler, however, hoisted a soft fly to right and Mathews fouled out with the count 3-1 to end the inning.

Mantilla was replaced by Bobby Avila, who still is bothered by a leg muscle pull. Hodges, who hit his twenty-fifth homer off losing reliever Bill Henry, gave the Dodgers a 4-2 lead with a 2-out, 2-run double in the sixth. But homers by Sammy Taylor, in the seventh off starter Don Drysdale, and Ernie Banks, in the eighth off Danny McDevitt, gave the Cubs their third tie of the game.

Sherry (6-2) came on in the tenth with two on and one out—and fanned Banks and got Walt Moryn on a grounder. He retired Al Dink on a pop-up and struck out pinch-hitter Dale Long to end it in the eleventh with the tying run on second.

The only other games scheduled were in the AL. Detroit beat the White Sox, 6-5, but New York nailed third place over the Tigers with a 5-2 victory over Baltimore. Cleveland beat Kansas City twice, 8-2 and 8-7, and Boston belted Washington 10-4.

Rigney Happy About Rainout Of Giant Tilt

St. Louis — "This rain is a real break—now our pitchers can rest," said Manager Bill Rigney, ignoring the possibility his San Francisco Giants may be out of the National league pennant race even before they take the field tonight.

The lean Giant head man was happy over the washout of Friday night's game with the St. Louis Cardinals. His club still had a chance to tie for the pennant, and Rigney was talking like a manager in a pennant race. But he knew the end may be near.

The gray-haired field boss seemed relaxed for the first time in many weeks. He admitted he had his first good night's sleep in a long time. "It's a strain on a club to hold a narrow first-place lead week after week," he said. "It's bound to tell."

A victory by the Los Angeles Dodgers today at Chicago would kill all Giant chances. The Giants must sweep all three games to have a chance of a pennant tie.

Bears Have Big Edge On Packers in Offense

BY ART DALEY
Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — So you're getting all hepped up about the Packers' chances against the Bears Sunday? Summer down! In fact, let's cool off today with some cold figures.

These numbers are based on the two clubs' non-league action. This is precarious — like us trying to get into the Bears' dressing room between halves Sunday, because there is much experimenting during the games. But let's look:

Here's a real soberer: The Bears averaged 33 points in sweeping to a 5-1 non-league record; the Packers, in concocting 4-2, averaged 19.6. Now we could give you some good arguments why the Bears should be ahead of the Packers in this particular department (scoring) but let us just state the facts. And draw your own conclusions!

Now on defense? The Bears allowed an average of 17.8 points per pre-season start; the Packers permitted 16.8. Our Packers are better than the Bears in that endeavor. And might we comment:

The Bears probably controlled the ball more than the Packers, which means that the Bay defense went to bat more times and consequently had a better defense under tougher conditions. Whoops, pardon! We said no arguments—for or against.

Now for the yard stick? The Bears gained 2,102 yards rushing and passing; the Packers 1,756. Ugh! The Bears allowed 1,451 yards rushing and passing, the Packers 2,034. Ugh!

The Bears gained 838 yards rushing; the Packers 1,009. The Bears permitted their opponents 657 yards by rushing, the Packers 719.

The Bears passed for 1,332 yards, the Packers 687. The Bears allowed 913 passing yards, the Packers 1,165. Norm Van Brocklin got 404 of those yards in the Packers' 45-28 victory over the Eagles.

Now you know. But don't worry, the game will still be played. Kick-off, by the way, is at 1:06.

'60 Oldsmobile Has 17 Models

2 Station Wagons Feature Third Seat Facing to Rear

New styling and balance of design are teamed with economy in the 17 new Oldsmobile models for 1960, according to Jack F. Wolfram, general manager of Oldsmobile and a vice president of General Motors.

The 1960 Oldsmobile features a redesigned engine in the "88" series for use with regular gasoline.

In all series there are new rear axle ratios. Two 3-seat Fiestas have been added to the station wagon line.

Curved Grille Chrome-plated bars in groups of three give the curved grille a wide look.

Headlights are placed horizontally with the outboard pair set behind the inboard pair. The parking lights are recessed in the wrap-around section of the bumper. Maneuverability is increased.

The lines are emphasized by chrome accent strip starting at the headlight on the front fender, sweeping back to the rear quarter where it dips.

Taillights are moulded into the rear fenders.

Engine Changes The engine adaptation for use with lower cost regular gasolines was accomplished through design changes in combustion chamber contour, piston and camshaft and the changing of the compression ratio to 8.75:1. The engine has a displacement of 371 cubic inches and develops 240 horsepower.

Used with the new standard 2.87 to 1 axle ratio and hydramatic transmission, the "88" Oldsmobile may give a 15 per cent improvement in miles per dollar," Wolfram said.

The standard rear axle ratio in each series has been lowered. This results in reduced engine speeds and quieter engine operation.

"Oldsmobile has added two new body styles to the 1960 lines," Wolfram said. "They are the 3-seat Fiesta station wagons in the '88" series. Two of the four wagons feature a full - size, rear-facing third seat," he said.

New Shock Absorbers Also added are new nylon sleeve shock absorbers and live rubber body mounts. A new fluid less affected by temperature changes is used in the shock absorbers.

A new transmission design allows a reduction of the front transmission tunnel of 20 per cent, resulting in more front seat leg room.

Rear entrance room has been bettered by increasing the door opening angle. The door swings open 5 inches more.

Fabrics of nylon, moroccon and genuine hand - rubbed leathers are used. The instrument panel has been wholly redesigned.

Rockets, Jays Launch Junior Varsity Cards

Neenah Treks to Kaukauna; MHS Faces Bulldogs

Neenah — The Neenah and Menasha junior varsity football squads open their fall schedules Monday afternoon with both contests away from home.

The Rockets, who had their 4-year win straight snapped at 22 last year, travel to Kaukauna while Menasha has a contest at New London.

The Neenah squad is expected to be composed entirely of sophomores since about 34 members of last year's yearling squad are on the varsity. Only one or two of the second year students will be held out of the jayvee test.

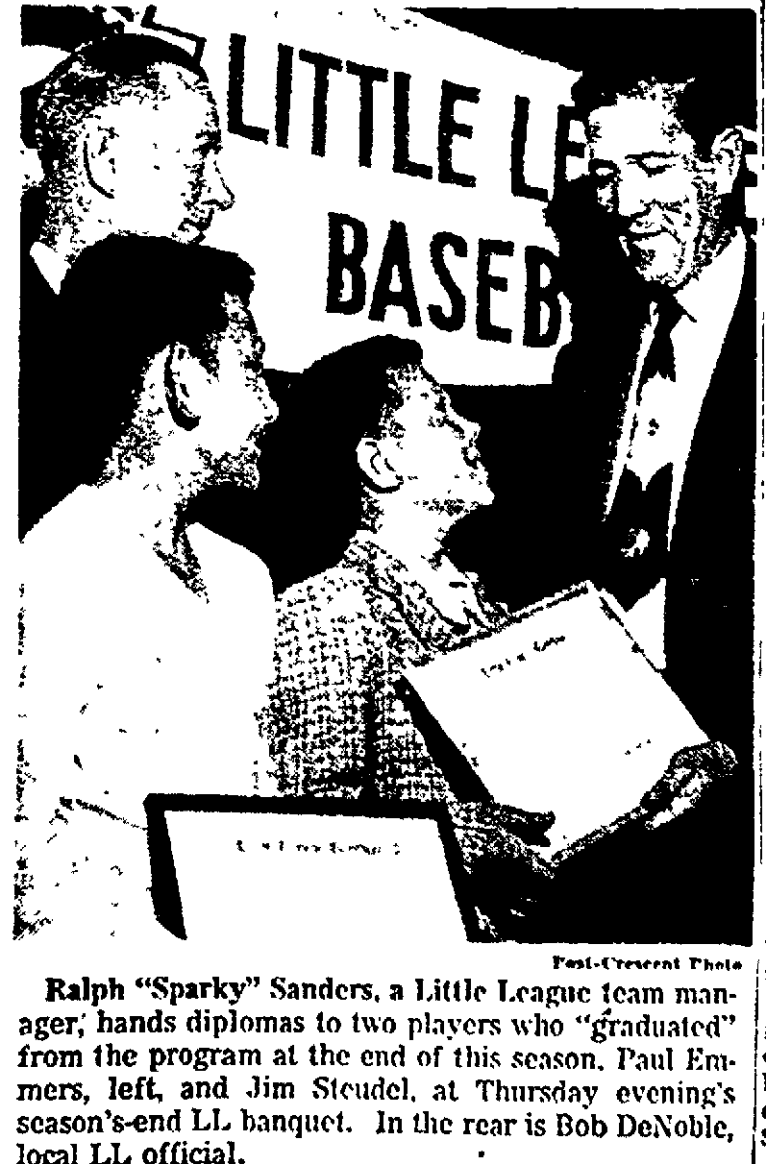

Because its varsity includes 12 or 13 sophomores, Menasha's jayvee roster also includes juniors who don't get to see much varsity duty.

Last year Neenah won its first two games but lost to Two Rivers, to halt its string, and then fell to Shawano and Menasha. The Jays had a 1-3 record, defeating Neenah for the first time since 1951, for the only win.

The Rockets edged Kaukauna 8-7 and New London outlasted Menasha 33-26 in last year's meeting. Neenah is coached by Harland Carl and Don Bartlett and Leo Kenney handles the Menasha team.

The Jays will play a 5-game slate, meeting every league team except Clintonville and Two Rivers. Neenah plays three games with Menasha and Kimberly the other two.

Matthew Lyon Did Not like John Adams, and insisted on his right to say so. He spent months in jail but could not be silenced.

Critic of President Was Thrown in Jail

BY ALVIN HARLOW

There have been two downright attempts by government to curb freedom of the press in America since Plymouth Rock. The first took place when John Peter Zenger, a New York publisher, was jailed in 1735 for criticizing the British colonial governor, but through a brilliant defense, was acquitted. In the second instance, 63 years later under our own young constitution, the accused was less fortunate.

Who would imagine that a country founded on the principles of free speech would toss an outspoken critic of a president into jail? But a jittery U. S. government once did, under the infamous Sedition Law of 1798. The critic was Matthew Lyon, whose surprising story gains interest because National Newspaper Week is celebrated Oct. 15-21 under the theme "Your Newspaper... Freedom's Textbook." Alvin Harlow, who has written extensively on social history, tells the story.

Lyon's Cell was cold and dimly lighted but he continued critical writings when opportunity presented itself.

him, young Lyon learned smelting and ironworking, and at 21, had acquired a small piece of property and married a young widow.

When the Allen tribe moved en masse in 1769 to the new wild country later known as Vermont, Lyon joined them. He had no sooner gotten a toe hold in the Vermont foothills when the long-simmering revolution boiled over. On May 10, 1775, Allen and his Green Mountain Boys, including Matthew Lyon, snatched Fort Ticonderoga from the British.

That year, Lyon was on the committee of safety, watching and foiling the evil designs of the Tories, and until the final hammering of Burgoyne at Saratoga, fought with the revolutionists.

Made Paper

Back in civilian life, he became secretary to the governor of the new independent state of Vermont, and in 1779 entered the legislature for the first of several terms. In 1783, he began to turn his flair for business into account, founded the village of Fairhaven, created a sawmill, a gristmill, an iron works, and set up a timber operation. He made paper from birch wood, built a printing press, and printed books and his own periodical.

When Vermont was admitted to the Union in 1791, Lyon began itching for a seat in congress, and won election to it in 1796. His very first gesture in the house was not calculated to endear him to the new president, crusty old John Adams. Lyon objected to the custom of representatives going in a body to the executive mansion to reply to the president's first message and ask whether he had any other wishes.

War Hysteria

In the summer of 1798, when talk of war with France was in the air, congress enacted the notorious "Alien and Sedition Laws," the first deporting "dangerous" foreigners, the second forbidding, among other things, "any false, scandalous and malicious writing" against the government, congress, or the president. This was, in flat, seemingly impudent violation of the First amendment to the constitution.

When a Vermont editor published a sharp criticism of Lyon for his antagonism to President Adams, Lyon sent him a reply which, according to the sedition law, had in it the makings of a crime. In the president he saw "every consideration of public welfare swallowed up in a continual grasp for power, an unbounded thirst for ridiculous pomp, foolish adulation and selfish avarice."

Very shortly a grand jury — packed against him, Lyon claimed, and not without a shadow of justification — found him guilty. The judge complimented his own leniency in sentencing Lyon to no more than four months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 and costs for so heinous an offense.

Continued Writings

The cell into which Lyon was thrust was 12 by 16 feet in size, with a "necessary" in one corner, "which afforded a stench about equal to that of the Philadelphia docks in August." There was little light and no heat, and his small, barred window had no glass in it. He was at first denied writing materials, but presently the authorities realized that if he had them, he would undoubtedly violate the law again, so Lyon was given pen and paper, and the inevitable happened. He wrote:

"Every one who is not (in) favor of this mad war (with France) is branded with the epithets of opposers of government, disorganizers, Jacobins, etc. It is quite a new kind of jargon to call a representative of the people an opposer of the government because he does not, as a legislator, advocate and acquiesce in every proposition that comes from the executive."

This was of course another violation, and another warrant was issued, to be served when the prison doors opened for him on Feb. 6.

Not Penitent

Lyon's term as a congressman had expired, and just before his trial an election was held to fill the vacancy. He was the only Democratic candidate, and the Federalists, fearing his popularity, had nominated several men, not expecting that any of them might win, but hoping that they would draw enough votes from Lyon to prevent his winning. This negative strategy prevented his getting a majority, though he polled the largest vote, but checked him only momentarily. His stature as a persecuted hero was increasing. In December there was a second election, and this time the prisoner was re-elected overwhelmingly.

From the time of his incarceration, Lyon held frequent conference with his loyal partisans through the little barred window of his cell. The Green Mountain Boys were all for shortening his term by demolishing the jail, but he dissuaded them. A petition signed by several thousand persons was presented to the president, asking for Lyon's release from a frigid and allegedly filthy cell. Mr. Adams declined unless the prisoner signed it too. "Penitence before pardon," was the executive epigram. But Lyon was anything but penitent; he refused to sign and remained in his dungeon.

Publisher Tried

The question now arose: how was his fine to be paid when his prison term expired? He had property but little cash; his business had suffered until he was well-nigh bankrupt. A lottery was proposed, with some of his property at Fairhaven as the prize. Anthony Haswell, publisher of the Vermont Gazette, willingly published an advertisement of the lottery — and wrote an editorial beginning, "Our Representative is held by the oppressive hand of usurped power in a loathsome prison, suffering all the indignities which can be heaped upon him by a hard-hearted savage." This was considered a libel upon the Vergennes jailer, and Haswell was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for it, plus a fine of $200.

Sen. Stevens T. Mason of Virginia was another who took the matter of the fine into his own hands. He collected $1,000 in gold, the amount of the fine and costs, — which must be paid in coin — from good Democratic party men in his own bailiwick, and with it in his saddlebags (and perhaps a pair of pistols), set forth on horseback shortly after the New Year to plod northward through mud, rain, snow, sleet and freezing cold to Vermont. He was there by Feb. 6, the day of Lyon's release, as were other messengers of relief.

The jail doors opened and the prisoner came forth, already wearing his greatcoat. As the officer reached into his inner pocket for the new warrant — we would not venture to suggest that anybody jostled him — Lyon leaped into the sleigh with his wife, cried out, "I'm on my way to congress!" and they sped away. Someone must have told the marshal that Lyon, being a member of congress, was immune to ordinary arrest, and he was not pursued. In fact, his journey to Washington was a triumphal progress — cheers, flags waving, crowds thronging to applaud him.

A New Frontier

As the Federalist party tottered to its fall in 1800, Jefferson, a Democrat, became president, Lyon did not seek re-election that year. His business had fallen into disorder, and a few bitter enemies were responsible for acts of sabotage and mysterious fires in his properties. Andrew Jackson urged him to move to a new frontier, and in 1801, he settled at a bend of the Cumberland river in western Kentucky, where he built up the town of Eddyville, in what was eventually to become Lyon county. Here he founded industries, as he had done in Vermont, and seemed on the way to a second manufacturing career. But he could not resist the call of politics. He entered the Kentucky legislature in 1802, and went back to the national House of Representatives in 1803, to serve another eight years.

Lyon tried to attend to business with one hand and politics with the other; both suffered. Neglect of his political "fences" and his opposition to the drift towards war with England combined to end his career in congress.

In 1820 President Monroe appointed him factor to the Cherokee Indians, with headquarters at Spadra Bluff in western Arkansas. Here he toiled at his job with the nervous drive of a man 40 years younger. Young Arkansas Territory elected him a delegate to congress in 1822, but his overstrained heart gave way, and he died, "a hero of three frontiers," before he could take his seat.

$36,000 Wage Boost Asked for Teachers

Salary Account Increases Would Total $64,000; Board to Act Monday on Requests

Increases of $64,000 in 1960 Appleton public school salary accounts were recommended to the school board by its education committee Friday night.

The increases for 1960 include $36,000 in wage boosts for teachers and administrators; $18,500 for 11 new teachers needed next fall, and $9,500 for summer school.

About $30,000 would be added to the teachers' salaries beginning in September, 1960. Another $60,000 would be budgeted for 1961, board members explained. (Teachers' contracts run from September to September, but the city budget year runs from January to January. Salary increases, therefore, are budgeted one-third in one budget period and two-thirds in another.)

About $6,000 would be added to administrators' salaries for 1960.

Base Not Announced

The full school board will act on the recommendations Monday night. Actual changes in base pay rates for teachers and percentage bases for administrators will not be decided until after the city council appropriates school funds and the board knows how much it has to spend on salary increases.

Teachers have requested a $200 increase in base pay. They also asked $150 more for each teacher who has taught 21 years or more.

Administrators asked for the $400 head-of-family allowance given teachers; $25 for each room supervised over a base of eight; and for complete institution of a percentage pay scale whereby the high school principal would earn 145 per cent of the highest paid teacher's salary, junior high school principals 130 per cent and elementary school principals 120 per cent.

That policy was approved last year and the percentage increases are being put into effect gradually by the board.

Insurance Plan

Both administrators and teachers asked for a life and liability insurance plan recently signed into law by Gov. Nelson. The board will study the request later when possible insurance plans details are known.

The committee also recommended hiring 11 new teachers for the 1960-61 school year, including five elementary teachers and one librarian, two additional high school guidance experts, two additional junior high school teachers and another English composition teacher for the senior high school.

The teachers would add $18,500 to the 1960 budget.

English Teacher

The five elementary teachers would be necessary to keep teacher-pupil ratios down to state requirements, Mann said. The additional high school teachers would help teach the "bulge" of students at that level. The two guidance experts would aid the two high school deans, both of whom counsel about 900 students apiece. The extra English teacher would lower the pupil ratio, making more themes possible in the junior year.

The committee also recommended expanding the elementary summer school program, adding two teachers. The total program will cost $9,500.

5 Charged With Drunkenness; Man Denies Gambling Count

Menasha — Five persons were charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct and a sixth was charged with allowing persons to gamble in the tavern where he was serving as bartender before Police Justice Arthur J. Ales this morning.

Their arrests followed a fight at a Main street tavern to which police were called at 4:59 p. m. Friday. The men had been in the tavern since 11 a. m., being unable to work because of the rain.

Police Chief Peter P. Clark said the men had been throwing dice in a back room at the tavern and that some of them were in a drunken condition. The fight resulted from an argument that developed during the dice game. A woman at the tavern was slapped during the fight, the chief said.

Arden Wendt, 49, 709 Manitowoc street, the bartender, pleaded innocent of disorderly conduct in allowing the gambling and trial was set for Oct. 9.

The others involved who pleaded guilty of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and were fined $10 and costs each are John Davidson, 58, Neil Davidson, 29, and Kenneth Davidson, 28, all of 429 Broad street; Harry Williams, 32, route 2, Neenah, and Russell Neshek, 35, 237 Lake street.

David Prosser, a guest from the Presbyterian youth group, will explain the communist form of government.

The trial grew out of a PF study of "Modern Rivals to Christian Faith," a book by Dr. Cornelius Lowe, associate professor of philosophy and religion at Western Michigan college, Kalamazoo.

A 5 p. m. dinner will take place before the program.

Kaukaunan Denies Drunken Driving

Kaukauna — Michael Grissman, 61, of 120 Third street, denied drunken driving charges when he appeared before Justice of the Peace Oscar T. Jahns. Grissman was arrested about 7 p. m. Friday. Trial is set for 10 a. m. Monday.

Dedication Today

Wiley Praises New 41 As Road to Future

Sen. Alexander Wiley has cited the improved Highway 41, as "a sound foundation for providing us with better roads to a brighter future."

His remarks were in a speech scheduled to be delivered at 2:30 p. m. today at dedication of the highway section around Neenah.

In a prepared release, Wiley stated the new roadway would step up trade and commerce to and from the Fox Cities, joining together the complex life of America.

"Overall, improved and expanded highways will enable such fine communities as yours to meet the cultural, social and recreational challenges of the future," Wiley declared.

Aids Tourist Trade

The highway also will aid tourist trade to Wisconsin, enabling the public to become acquainted more thoroughly with the United States. Wisconsin's senior senator said.

Roadbuilding has been going forward despite a temporary national slowdown because of the deficiency of funds, he said. Other problems include "finding sources of revenue, reducing the number of highway deaths and the amount of property damage, and extending the network of roadways to include not only major cities but also outlying communities, including farm-to-market and neighbor-to-neighbor roadways."

"In face of the increasing volume of traffic, our country as well as our states and local communities will need a further improved and expanded network of roadways," he predicted.

The ceremonies will take place at W. Main street and the new 4-lane overhead on U. S. Highway 10 in Neenah.

Other officials expected to attend are John G. Conrad, executive secretary of the Twin Cities Chamber of Commerce; State Sen. William A. Draheim; Assemblyman Arnold Cane; H. W. Empey, district highway engineer, and Harold L. Plummer, chairman of the state highway commission.

Board Readies For Mann's Retirement

Preparation for retirement of Supt. of Schools John P. Mann some time late in 1960 went another step forward Friday night at the school board's education committee meeting.

The committee recommended a budget item of $7,000 for an interim superintendent, beginning in July, to work with Mann, who will be 65 in October, 1960. Mann would work for nearly the entire year.

The request will be acted on by the full board Monday night. Action will not be final until appropriations are made by the council in November.

No Coordinator

The interim superintendent item replaces a possible curriculum coordinator. Committee members agreed the new superintendent should have a voice in hiring a curriculum coordinator, with whom he would have to work closely.

Mann estimated a coordinator would draw a minimum salary of $8,500 yearly, compared to a previous budget estimate of $7,500, and a new superintendent $13,000 or $14,000 yearly. Mann now earns $13,000 annually.

Auto Sideswiped By Stolen Car

A stolen car was involved in a sideswiping and fled the scene Friday night on Highway 47 between Appleton and Menasha.

The car, a 1950 black 2-door Dodge sedan, was reported stolen about 3:20 a. m. today. Robert Van Dera, 1015 N. Superior street, told police he left the car in the St. Joseph Catholic church parking lot, 300 W. Lawrence street, about 8:30 p. m. Friday and it was missing when he returned. The ignition keys were left in the car.

Menasha police shortly after 10 p. m. Friday asked Appleton police to look for a car fitting the Van Dera vehicle description and the license number was the same. A witness told Menasha police that two youths were driving the car at the time of the accident.

Name and address of the driver of the sideswiped car were not available.

The Van Dera car has not been found.

New York on Juvenile Delinquency

The conferences among the leaders of New York State and New York City on the problem of juvenile delinquency indicate that chief reliance there will be on better police work and conservation camps for those convicted of minor crimes and perhaps for those suspected as potential delinquents.
However, Gov. Rockefeller has been insisting upon additional preventive measures. He has asked for a review of laws governing part-time work for boys in the 14 to 16 age group. He has pointed out that many boys of this age, unable to profit from attending school, become trouble makers, disrupt discipline and often cause property damage.
We think the governor has put his finger upon a very important point in the problem of delinquency. Boys in this age group who come from very poor families are apt to find themselves in need of spending money. Under the present laws they have no opportunity to earn such money honestly and there is little or no chance of them getting enough from their parents. In this situation they often turn to petty crimes. It is quite likely that a great number would much prefer to work for their money and if they were so occupied they would avoid many of the temptations that now confront them. With much the same problem in mind, the governor has

The Black Robes of Justice

The circuit judges of Wisconsin began wearing black robes in court about eight months ago. The decision had been made at the previous annual meeting of the judges but had been opposed by several prominent members. Now some of the bitterest foes of the policy have changed their minds completely.
At the annual meeting of the circuit judges at Land O'Lakes last week Judge Richard W. Orton, Lancaster, Judge Bruce Beilfuss, Neillsville, and Judge Gerald J. Boileau, Wausau, indicated they had come to favor the use of robes because of their experience with them. Judge Orton expressed the universal opinion when he said, "If I were to vote on wearing the judicial robes now, I would cast my ballot in their behalf. The judicial robe has definitely enhanced the decorum in the courtrooms of our state."
The judges have experienced some discomfort wearing the robes during ex-

Came, Conquered and Then What?

The British, even those not connected with Scotland Yard, don't like to give up on mysteries. Archeologists still are digging among ruins near the city of York to find out what happened to a Roman legion which disappeared more than 1,800 years ago.
The Ninth was a crack occupation force sent up to York by the Roman general Petrius Cerealis about the year 60. A small fort had been built in the swamp land in an effort to move the pivotal defense point farther north to contain the fierce Brigantes tribesmen. Five thousand members of the Ninth marched north of Hadrian's wall and disappeared. An inscription on the gate of the walled city, dated 109, is the last anyone ever officially heard of the Ninth.
It is likely that the Brigantes attacked in force and overran the fortress with its massive stone towers which still are stand-

Laos News Important Even Though Vague

From The Albany, N. Y., Knickerbocker News
When issues arise involving tiny countries like Laos, Cambodia, and a score of others in Asia and Africa, it is easy to think of these nations too pretentiously.
A country to us means something like Canada, Holland, Denmark and long established democracies with which through travel or history books we are likely to be familiar.
Thus when we read of an invasion of Laos we get a picture of a tiny nation securing its borders against attackers. To say that this may not be the precise situation is not to say that what is happening isn't serious for the future of the free world. On the other hand, there is no point in nurturing misconceptions either. Many such governments are frail flowers, indeed.
These thoughts are occasioned by arrival of the current "The AP Log," a sort of weekly bulletin of shop talk published by Associated Press executives.
In what amounts to an informal report to editors, the truth (hard to come by at best) seems to shine through suggested that the law governing school attendance also be studied. He believes that it would be helpful if boys were allowed to work days and go to continuation school at night. This plan would have the excellent effect of giving the boys something useful to do and at the same time would provide them with money, which they might otherwise be tempted to acquire by theft.

He has proposed further that business management and unions cooperate with the state labor department in developing a plan for employment of youths. Such boys, he thinks, might be taught a trade.
The conservation camps have been pretty well accepted in New York as the most satisfactory means of occupying the time of boys brought into court for minor offenses. Yet the governor's idea of keeping these boys busy before they get into trouble may have even a better and more far-reaching effect than the camps which in large measure will receive the boys only after they have been in trouble. It is pretty obvious that most of the state laws banning the employment of young boys were written back in the days when the possibility of child labor was a much greater threat than it is today. It is a good idea to regulate child labor but if the choice is between getting spending money through crime or through honest labor, the correct choice should be quite obvious.

tremely hot weather. However, they have managed to meet this problem in different ways. Some have omitted the robes and appeared on hot days in light summer suits while others have worn only light sport shirts without ties under the robes.
If the robes are of value in the circuit court, they presumably would have a similar value in the other courts. Thus it is understandable that the Wisconsin Board of County Judges and the Wisconsin Board of Criminal Court Judges both have voted in favor of robes so they will be making their appearances in all courts very soon.
Judge Beilfuss has found that, "the robe is extremely meaningful in the trial cases involving juveniles and adult criminal defendants. It has convinced me that it is a necessary symbol of the administration of justice." To the citizen who seldom sees the inside of the courtroom the addition of the robes may seem a trifling matter. But many trifles are important and this appears to be one of them.

ing today. Author Rosemary Sutcliffe has written a fine teenage novel, The Eagle of the Ninth, in which she speculates that some of the Romans were left alive and joined the barbarian tribes. Considering the vast gap between the two cultures this is unlikely. Moreover scholars have found the names of some of the officers of the Ninth appearing on later lists of other legions.
It is likely that the Ninth took a walling which the Romans felt it strategic not to broadcast. Back in Rome the legion's name was quietly removed from the imperial army lists. This implied deep disgrace. The Emperor Hadrian sent another legion north in the year 122 but eventually the disintegration in Rome meant the abandonment of the outposts of the far-flung empire in the British Isles.
But Englishmen, forerunners of the Canadians who always get their men, still are digging.

"I didn't say that," and later denied even that he had seen the newsmen.
"A responsible official gave one reporter a figure of 30 killed and 15 minutes later told another the number was 300. At that point, one correspondent wrote off the war as a phony and took the next plane home.
"Isn't that a phony war. Needed into action by North Vietnam and possibly by Red China, bands of Red guerrillas have sprung up, infiltrating the countryside, spreading propaganda, fighting only small engagements. Even though the army has been primed with millions of U. S. dollars, the government seems incapable of stopping the guerrillas.
"But Vietnamese bears little resemblance to a capital of a nation at war. Ox carts and luxury cars mingle in the sleepy streets. Military headquarters still takes weekends off and shuts down at noon for a 3-hour siesta.
The cable office closes at 7:30 every evening, leaving the correspondent to conduct post mortems in the city's two flashy night clubs — an amazing sight in the jungles of southeast Asia. In one of them, each of the 16 electric fans bears an American aid sticker!"
It strikes us that given this picture, one begins to read the news dispatches more meaningfully.

Jacques Porlier Brought Culture to Fox Valley

Former Home Historical Site At Green Bay

BY JACK RUDOLPH
Post-Crescent News Service
A frontier is a magnet for many kinds of men: adventurers, fugitives, misfits, the weak and the strong. It even attracts gentlemen.
Jacques Porlier was a gentleman. He must have seemed strangely out of place at times in the crude Wisconsin wilderness, but he came because he liked it and he stayed for almost 50 years.
Born, raised and educated in the most cultured and exclusive circles of old Montreal, the suave and polished Porlier turned his back on a secure social and financial future when he was 26 and elected to spend the rest of his long life on the frontier. He had little reason except personal preference to do so, but he never regretted it and in the long run added more than his share to the development of the struggling settlement at LaBaye, now Green Bay.
Jacques Porlier was born in 1765, apparently a descendant of minor French nobility. Originally intended for the priesthood he was educated in the best Montreal schools but changed his mind and entered his father's large fur trading business instead.

Moved in 1791

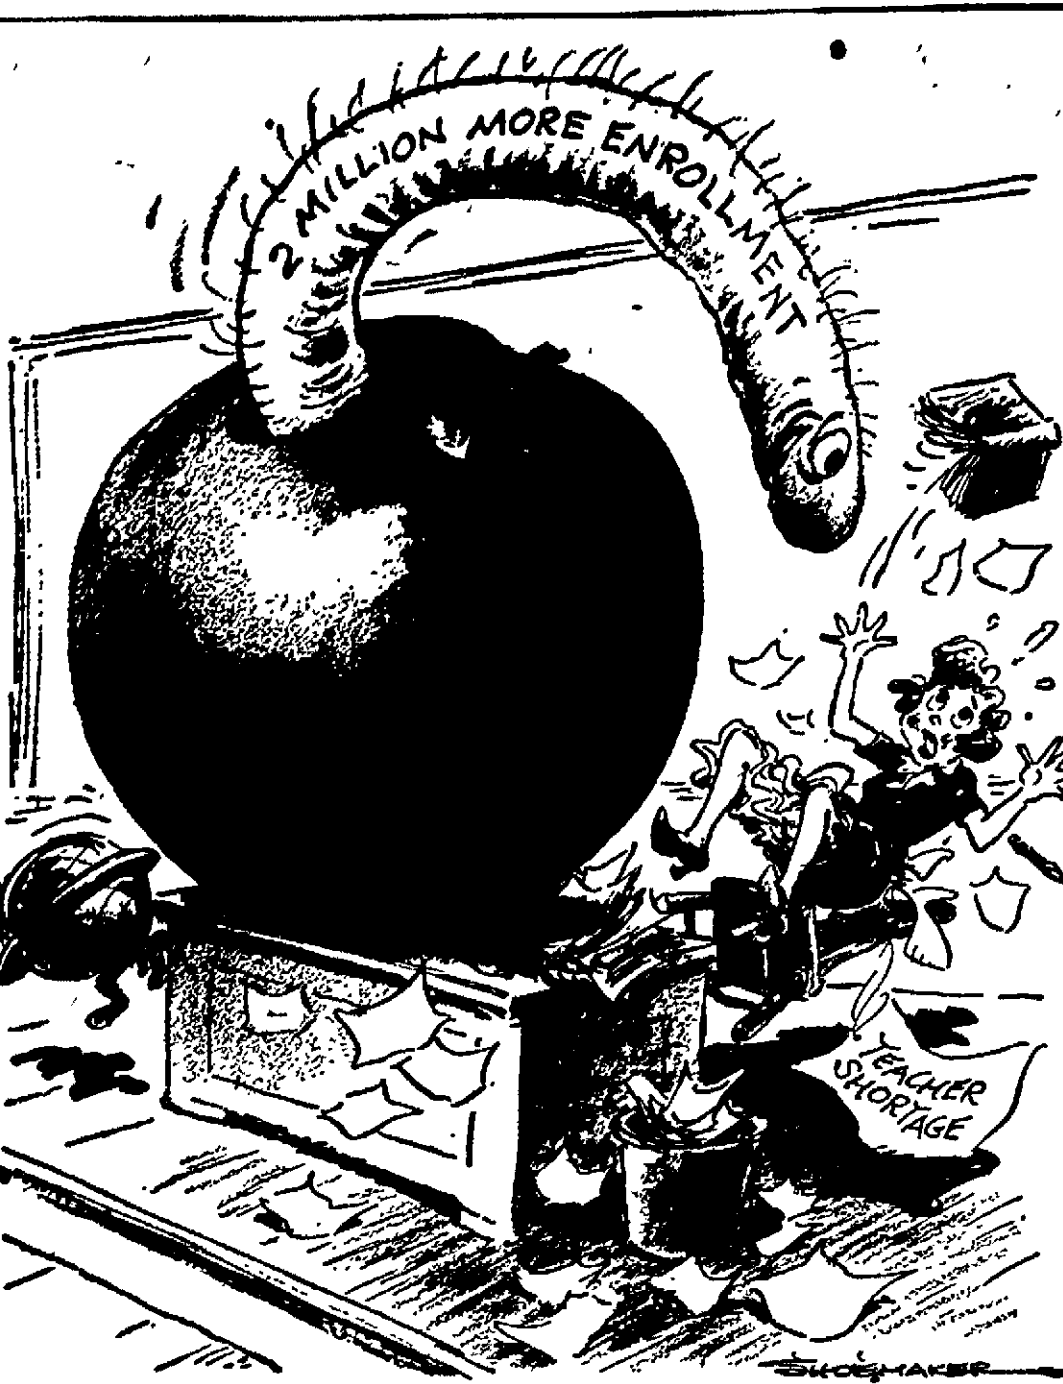

In 1783 he visited the western country, fell in love with its raw beauty and immensity and in 1791 made his move. He abandoned a budding career in Montreal society to do it, having only a short time before been commissioned captain lieutenant of militia, a post open only to the socially elite.
Porlier came to Green Bay as a clerk for Pierre Grignon and tutor to the Grignon children, a job that probably ranks him as the first school teacher in Wisconsin. Two years later he struck out for himself as an independent fur trader. He remained in the business until shortly before his death, even while deeply involved in public affairs.
He was a business rival of John Lawe and his old employers, with whom he always remained on the

Subtle Meanings in Catlin Law Repeal

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison — The law of Wisconsin as amended by the signature of Gov. Nelson upon a legislative enactment last week provides that if 100 Wisconsin citizens form a corporation for the purpose of selling goods and services they cannot use their company resources for financial contributions to a political campaign.
The same law provides that if 100 persons form a cooperative, also for economic gain, as for collective purchasing or selling, they cannot use any of their collective resources to affect the state of political opinion through campaign contributions.
But if the same 100 persons decided, instead, to form an organization to represent their interests as workmen, as in collective bargaining with employers, they have the right to use as much of their common treasury for political purposes as they choose.

That is the essential meaning of the repeal of the so-called Catlin law, which outlawed labor organization political financing in Wisconsin as corporate financial participation in politics was outlawed more than half a century ago.
BUT MORE
But there is an even more subtle meaning involved, and one that is discriminatory on its face.
It is hardly conceivable that any situation would arise under which any individual would be compelled to join a corporation or a cooperative. Even if it is conceivable, it will hardly be a common thing.
Yet there are thousands of men and women in Wisconsin who may not belong to labor organizations voluntarily. They are enrolled under so-called union shop agreements between the labor organizations and management, requiring them to be members of the union as a condition of working at their customary place of employment.
If all labor organization most intimate terms outside business hours. He established his base of operations on the west bank of the Fox river directly opposite Lawe's Point. In 1805 he purchased the house built by Joseph Roi, now famous as the Rol-Porlier-Tank Cottage, oldest building in Wisconsin.

In 1793 Porlier married Marguerite Griesie, whom he found living with her Indian mother in a Menominee village on the St. Croix river. Marguerite's father had been his predecessor as clerk for Grignon and had abandoned his family.
Successful Marriage
Porlier's marriage was different from the usual run of white-Indian common law alliances. The couple remained together for nearly half a century, Marguerite surviving him by five years. They had several children, three of whom were still living in the 1880s.
In 1812 Porlier was appointed British justice of the peace, a commission renewed in 1815, shortly before the end of the War of 1812, when he was also commissioned captain of militia at Green Bay. Nearly 50 at the time, he was too old for active service, and the appointment was probably intended to utilize his prestige in the area.

After the war Porlier took the oath of allegiance to the United States and became an American citizen in 1821. Meanwhile he had been appointed to a series of important positions by territorial governors. He became an ensign of militia in 1816 and a lieutenant in 1822, although he was then 57 years of age.

Chief Justice

In September of 1820 he was appointed chief justice of Brown county, a dignity he held until the organization of Wisconsin as a territory in 1836. At the same time he functioned as justice of the peace and county commissioner.

He was also judge of probate, which office he resigned in 1822. Because he was the most educated man in the settlement, all public and business documents were drawn up by him, a service he usually performed free of charge.
Although he could read English he could not or would not speak it. A quirk that afforded the later American settlers considerable amusement was his habit, when performing a marriage ceremony, of reading the service first in English and then in French. He was well aware it wasn't necessary but he just felt better about doing it that way.
Another example of his conscientious devotion to exactness was revealed when the old French laws were replaced by the laws of Michigan Territory in 1822. Porlier carefully and laboriously translated the entire code from English into French for his own reference and use. The hand-written manuscript is now one of the treasures of the State Historical Society.

Fell Into Debt
As a fur trader Porlier was typical of the pre-American breed, open handed and careless about costs and accounts. In partnership with Lawe and the Grignons he fell into heavy debt to the American Fur Co., to whom he mortgaged his extensive land holdings in the Fox River Valley.
When the company called his notes in 1834 he was unable to pay and lost everything except his cherished home. A stroke shortly after the disaster, which left his right side completely paralyzed, was believed to have been brought on by the foreclosure.
Suave, courtly and gallant, Porlier was held in considerable awe by most of his associates, who deferred to him in every way, particularly in his later years. Fully conscious of his position and titles, he was very proper and probably a little arrogant.
At least Augustin Grignon recalled years later that at every social gathering — and none was complete without him — the old gentleman knew how and when to make an entrance. "On his entrance," Grignon declared, "All mirth and impertinence subsided, and the company deferred to and awarded him the post of honor."

Man of Culture

He was a man of culture and fastidious tastes, none of which ever rubbed off on the crude bark of Wisconsin's wilderness, and remarkable for the grammatical purity and elegance of his French speech. The extensive and formal garden he personally groomed around his home was his pride and joy.
Porlier was a slight, wiry man about five feet ten inches tall, with a light complexion and sandy hair. In middle age he became partly bald and his remaining hair finally turned grey. Despite the paralysis of his last years he carried himself with great dignity to the very end.
He died after an illness of only two or three days on July, 12, 1839, at the age of 74. He was probably buried in Allouez cemetery in a section whose grave markings disintegrated years ago. Because of the complete lack of early cemetery records the location of his grave has been lost.

troubled about this anomalous situation of a party which has boasted so long and effectively of its consideration for the rights of minorities.
There lurks in the mind of anyone who contemplates this act the suspicion that the Democrats didn't altogether like what they were doing, but felt they had to do it, as a practical matter.
What else has the new Democratic regime offered to its labor allies, in the first year of its accession to power at the statehouse?
There also lurks the suspicion that some of the older hands in organized labor are a little sensitive about this record, but also felt that they had to do it. Voluntary contributions are one thing, when it comes to speech-making. Compulsory contributions are more practical when it comes time to raise those campaign kitties.

Moonlighting Rises For Teachers, Farmers; Living Cost Cause
From The Mason (Ga.) Telegraph
About one person in every 20 in the working population has been a moonlighter in the last few years, holding down two or more jobs, according to labor bureau statistics.
The number of dual jobholders last year was approximately 3.1 million, or almost 5 per cent of all employed workers.
The highest rates of moonlighting among the various occupational classifications were among farmers and teachers.

Council Asks Bids on Two Big Projects

Lowe Street Wall Repair, Construction Of Sewers Involved

The city council has ordered a call for bids on two major projects.

One is the proposed repair of the Lowe street retaining wall which the director of public works claims may crumble at any time.

The other involves construction of a force main from the northwest sewage lift station to the gravity sewer west of Richmond street, storm sewers on Bay and Shaw streets and Fairway court, and a culvert under Perkins street south of the railroad tracks.

Preliminary resolutions were passed declaring the council's intent to make special assessments for sewer, water, grading and graveling on Commercial street from Sharon street west to the end of the street.

A resolution requiring sewer and water laterals on Reinhold court from Kernan avenue west also passed. If property owners fail to hire their own contractors, the city will advertise for bids.

A waiver of notice of assessments was accepted for sewer, water, grading and graveling on Jackson street, Hoover to Roland, and on Roland avenue, Jackson east to the end of the platted street.

Sidewalk Ordered

Sidewalk was ordered on the west side of Prospect avenue from the point where it now ends at Oakcrest drive to where it resumes in front of Xavier High school, and on the south side of Byrd street, Owassa to Ullman.

An asphalt surface for the west half of the alley connecting Pierce avenue and Locust street between College avenue and Lawrence street was ordered for 1960 construction.

A list of 325 temporary patches which the city received Aug. 31 from Wisconsin Michigan Power company was scheduled for work in 1960.

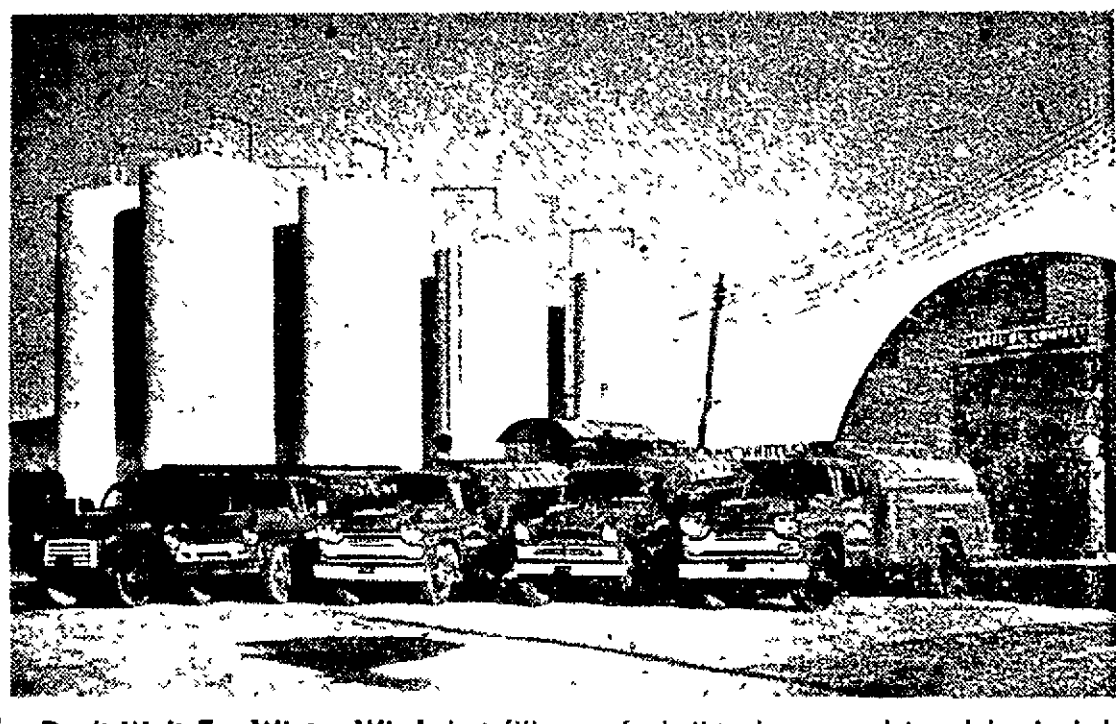

Louis Simon, 327 W. Wisconsin avenue, was denied a junk dealer's license. Abraham Shilerat, 217 E. Commercial street was granted one.

St. Joseph congregation was granted a dance license for Oct. 2.

Bills were ordered sent out after paving work on Prospect avenue and in the Riverdale section was approved.

Hurt in Fall

Terry Krueger, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krueger, route 2, Neenah, was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Lindy's ambulance about 5:30 p.m. Thursday after she received back injuries in a fall from a rope she was using to swing around a tree. She was released after treatment.

Revolutionary New Suspension System gives a vast improvement in ride, durability, and control to 1960 Chevrolet trucks, according to Gibson's your local Chevrolet dealer, located at 129 S. Superior street.

Impressive gains in cushioning cargo and passengers from road shock, plus much greater stability and safety result from a revolutionary suspension system designed for 1960 trucks, Gibson Chevrolet company announced today. The totally redesigned truck suspension provides the nearest approach to passenger car ride and handling yet achieved, along with vastly improved durability. It has been under development for six years, the firm stated. "Aside from the obvious advantage of passenger comfort, this new suspension offers an economic bonus to truck buyers," Gibson's commented. "Because road shock is largely absorbed by rugged suspension members instead of being driven into the frame, chances for damage to fragile cargoes are reduced and life of cabs, metal panels, and other chassis components is prolonged, leading to lower maintenance costs." Front wheels are independently spring on frictionless torsion rods. Rear suspensions are new, with coil springs on light-duty models and stronger, softer riding leaf springs on heavier models for improved cushioning of load and driver. See the 1960 Chevrolet truck at Gibson's, 129 S. Superior street.

DuPont Will Push Anti-Freezes in Fall Advertising
The largest advertising campaign in the history of "Zerex" and "Zerone" anti-freezes will be launched this fall by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. in the Appleton Post-Crescent. "High-frequency" is the byword of DuPont's newspaper support for Zerex and Zerone. A series of ads, alternately emphasizing the product advantages and dealer installation, will appear every working night of the week—Monday through Friday—in some 400 newspapers in key markets throughout the country and Alaska.

The Entire Store Is Our Display Window, officials say of the new Standard Building Center, formerly the Standard Manufacturing company, building supply company for over 50 years. Open house for this new and most modern building will be held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Oct. 1, 2 and 3.

A much needed display area for a growing company is at last realized by the Standard Building Center. When Appleton and the surrounding residents see this new building next weekend, they will view in actual use the many woods and finishes they have read about and seen on small samples for a long time.

The offices on the second floor are the most modern and up-to-date. The entry and hall is in soft butternut, and there is one office each in warm cherry, Korina birch, and a red oak with a very light finish. The conference room is in white oak with Oriental wall paper.

In the basement is the stock room, air conditioners, for the whole store is air conditioned, and a stock elevator that starts right at the back door.

A delightful room in the basement is decorated in pale pink and lovely wood paneling. This will be available to groups and organizations for special meetings. It is equipped with a built-in kitchen that any woman would like in her home, rest rooms, telephone, cloak rooms and a separate entrance for evening meetings.

Standard says their whole store is a showroom now, and indeed, the large, airy building, surrounded on three sides by floor to ceiling windows, is just that.

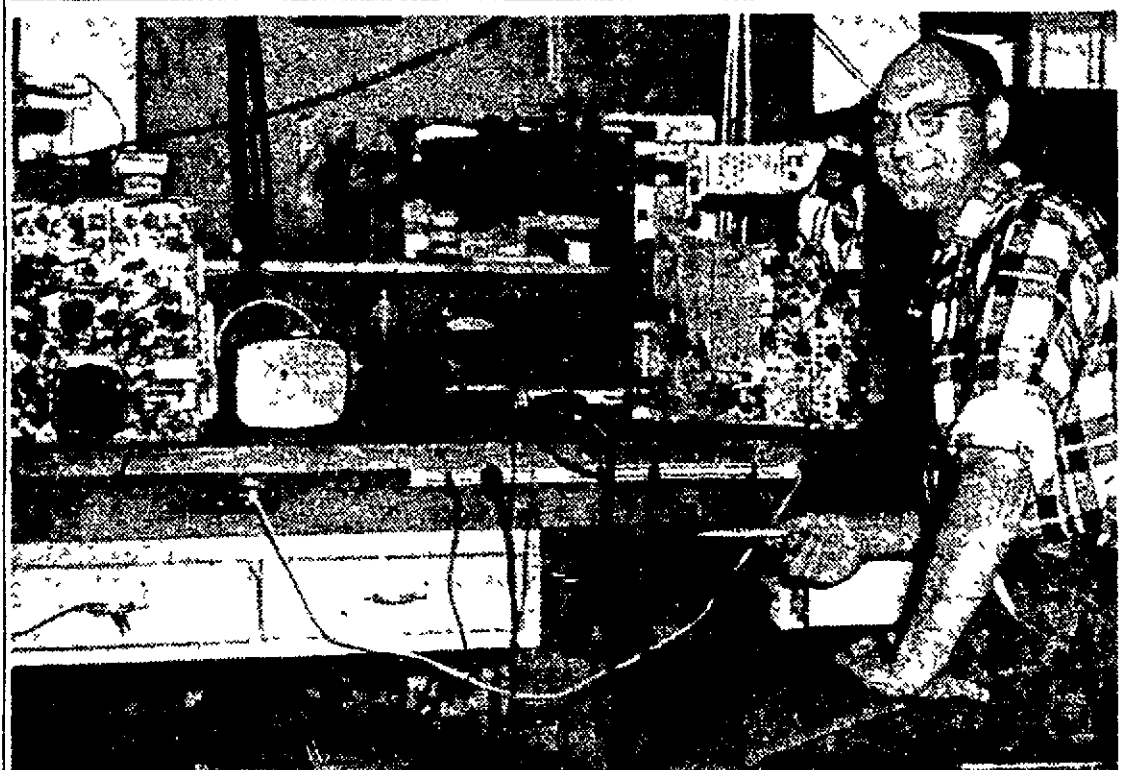

Here is a new and most modern kitchen with every built-in imaginable. There is a home planning center with books and folders to help any one in need. Over there are

The Saab From Sweden, the economy car, sold by Biddle Foreign Cars, Valley Fair Shopping center, is even more terrific for 1960 with important new features at no extra cost. Biddle's is open daily except Sundays from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at Valley Fair.

In a survey among owners through performance. It is recently conducted by Popular Mechanics, according to the September issue, the SAAB was ranked Number 1 over the 9 other top selling imported family cars. In the percentage rating in the survey, the SAAB received a 96.9 per cent rating, the Volkswagen 94.0; the Volvo 93.3. Biddle believes that owners ought to know better than anyone else how good a car is and in this field SAAB ranks first.

Sweden's SAAB earned its title "the economy car" first of all through performance. It is possible by most other cars. It has no valves to get noisy, to adjust burn out, stick, to grind, to replace. With no valves, Biddle states, the SAAB engine is easy on your pocketbook. This is true also in the field of fuel economy. Biddle's are pleased to extend an invitation to anyone to stop out and test drive the 1960 SAAB at any time. Its showroom and fine used car lot at Valley Fair is open daily except Sundays from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Fall Television Schedule Will Begin next week so make sure that your set is in perfect running order, advises Rabideau Sales, 200 W. Wisconsin avenue, Kaukauna. Shown above is part of the service department at Rabideau's with Phil Czerwinski about to tackle a work bench full of TV sets and radios, phonographs, or anything electronic. Rabideau Sales also have new Westinghouse and Motorola TV and radios. They claim that there are unusual trade-ins going on at this time. It is almost time for the new models to be coming and Rabideau wants to move this year's stock out to make room. Rabideau Sales also carry a full line of white goods, including refrigerators, stoves, washers and dryers in the Westinghouse, Norge and Easy makes.

The good conception rate of a herd is most important when combined with the use of top bulls. The words "proved bull" seems to be kicked around a lot in artificial insemination conversation. Many dairymen have the idea that all insemination services use only proven bulls. Other dairy men tend to discount the value of proven bulls because they feel the proofs were falsely obtained.

Valley Proved Sire Service have the facts concerning ABS proven sires. "ABS is the only insemination service in the country that uses only high-index proven sires. ABS proved sires are proven under a variety of conditions. The proofs are checked and examined, each offspring is traced and checked until ABS bull buyer, Mr. L. Lamb, is absolutely certain the bull is worthy to enter the ABS stud. A dairyman in this area, who sold a bull to ABS, will verify to the thoroughness of the checking."

They go on to say that ABS must be especially cautious in the selection of its bulls because the semen from them will not be confined to a relatively small local area, but will be spread over the entire United States and foreign countries. ABS semen must be good because an error in judgment would be too costly to too many dairymen.

The firm says when you breed ABS you combine not only the finest rate of conception, but the semen from the top bulls in each respective breed. Compare ABS proofs and pedigree with any bull, regardless of purchase price. When you use a proven bull you are only interested in that bull's proof, or in other words, his ability to transmit desirable characteristics to his offspring.

True dairy economy is based upon conception so your present cow will continue to produce milk, but just as important, the offspring from that cow is your future herd replacement carrying inheritance for high production and desirable type. When only 1-3 to 4 of your herd is bred to proven sires and the balance to unproven, younger bulls, you figure your percentage of luck in having your heifer calves come from the proven sire breeding.

Breeding authorities say when you breed ABS, you eliminate the luck factor, because all your cows are bred to high-index proven bulls. Contact Don Immel at Dale, Milt Schaechner at Shiocton, PL 7-5540, Fred Lecker, route 3, Appleton, RE 3-4224, or Valley Proved Sire Service, Appleton, RE 3-1962, for further information.
